EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

WHAT can Mr. Tilden want of the Democratic party that he should try to capture it again?

THE quarrel between Governor Plaisted of Maine and his Council continues, but we do not observe that he abolishes the Council any more.

GENERAL GRANT thinks Mr. Conkling is a necessity in New York politics. He undoubtedly is for a Republican quarrel, but not for a Republican victory.

THE Reorganized Democrats are trying hard to brace themselves up sufficiently to tread on John Kelly's coat-tails. The way they whistle and remark "Who's afraid?" is extremely amusing.

PERHAPS the main reason why the New York Democrats are willing to shut Tammany out of their Convention this year is that they are going be defeated anyway, and there will be no risk in snubbing Kelly.

MR. HENDRICKS is talking with great freedom on all public questions. He has started to run for the Presidency three years too soon, as usual. All his life he has been repeating the fatal blunder of being too "previous."

THE New York Democratic Committee was able to pass resolutions of sympathy for the President. While a Stalwart is a deputy-Democrat, the Democrats evidently do not wish to be looked upon as deputy-Stalwarts

IF the President takes a fresh start now, as he himself says he already has, and improves steadily, the question of inability will soon drop out of sight. There is no harm in letting it rest for a short time longer. There is no apprehension in the public mind on the subject.

DRS. Woodward, Barnes and Reyburn have withdrawn from the President's case. The withdrawal seems to grow out of a feeling, which no doubt they share, that the President has now reached a stage where the services of a corps of six surgeons are no longer necessary. There is no food for sensationalism in the announcement. Drs. Bliss, Agnew and Hamilton remain in charge, and the President is not likely to suffer for lack of skilled medical attention.

MR. BOOKWALTER'S Literary Bureau is the only political force which is visibly at work in the Ohio campaign. The Republicans are letting their canvass take care of itself apparently. As for the Democrats, there is no sign that they have any interest whatever in the outcome of Mr. Bookwalter's experiment. The newspapers scarcely mention him. Some of them publish the feeble stuff which his Bureau turns out, but that cannot be said to impart animation to the canvass. It seems to be settled on all sides that Ohio is not going to vote against the President while he lies on a sick bed, and both parties are satisfied that no amount of exertion will alter the situation.

IT has become usual to allude to President Garfield's superabundant vitality and his great will power, and there can be no doubt that the something which is thus vaguely indicated has a very great deal to do with his stubborn repulse of the assaults of sickness, disease and the grim reaper. But what is that something? A large class of people will smile cynically, not a few will note the remark indifferently, but there are many who we hope and believe will agree with us that that mysterious something is described by that small but comprehensive word faith. The President's sad affliction has already borne good fruit, and if, under Providence, his restoration shall be complete, we may expect to see still further evidences of the power of good example.

The Mistake of Too Great Self-Importance.

Hon. C. S. Wolfe, of Union county, has unfurled the banner of revolt against the Republican party. What motives really prompted him to do this suicidal act is certainly an enigma, if it be one founded upon a good reason. He was at Harrisburg at the Republican Convention last week, not as a delegate, nor as a candidate, but as a sort of a manipulator. What direction he desired to give to the action of the Convention we do not know. The only thing we learned of his trying to do was to organize a bolt, in which he ignominiously failed. In his pronunciamento announcing himself an independent Republican candidate, he says the "black flag" has been unfurled against the independents, and that he is a candidate in accord with the present National Administration.

So far as the black flag being unfurled against the independents, we have no knowledge of it, nor does it exist except in the imagination of the statesman of Union county, which is certainly warped and distorted by imaginary persnoal grievances and disappointed ambition. We know that the nomination of Mr. Baily as State Treasurer was made unanimous by the Convention, which had given eighty-four votes for Mr. Davies, whom it was supposed Wolfe was supporting.

The Republican party in Convention at Harrisburg also put itself in direct accord and sympathy with the National Administration, and Mr. Wolfe proposes in his announcement to do no more. So far as the black flag being unfurled against the independents by the Convention last week, it is a mere figment of Mr. Wolfe's imagination. And so far as Mr. Wolfe proposes to stand upon a platform in harmony with the National Administration he simply steps upon the platform adopted by the Republican party last week, in Convention at Harrisburg.

Then there can be no excuse nor reason for the action of Mr. Wolfe based upon the assertion of his self-announced candidacy. It seems to us that Mr. Wolfe has grown entirely too fast as a great statesman in his own conceit to be any longer forced to hold a secondary place in councils of the Republican party of Pennsylvania. He estimates his services to the State to be of so great value that they should command for him the highest recognition, and entitle him to the first place of leadership among the Republican hosts. Because his extraordinary services to the State (barring his directorship in a graveyard insurance company and his suit for extra pay), have not been appreciated by the people of the State as highly as he appreciates them himself, nor as highly as he thinks they should have been, he therefore proposes to gratify his vaulting ambition by placing himself outside the pale of the party, and play the role of a political martyr, in the shape of an independent candidate.

While we are sorry for Mr. Wolfe personally, yet we don't know in what manner he could for a time so fully gratify his disappointed ambition and secure a healing balm to his imaginary political grievances, with so little harm to the Republican party, as by being a self-announced and self-advocated independent candidate for State Treasurer.

THE forest fires in Michigan suddenly assume a National importance. An appeal to the country for aid for the sufferers is issued by a committee in Detroit, of which Senator Conger is a member. The picture drawn in this document of the ravages of fire is a terrible one. All previous reports of the loss of life have been far underestimated instead of being exaggerated. The figures received are almost incredible. The committee say they have reports of 200 deaths, and it is feared that the whole number will prove to be not less than 600. The destruction of homes, crops and all the accumlations of the labor of many thousands of people, is hardly less appalling. In twenty townships, it is said, there is hardly a house, barn or building of any kind left standing. A region having a population of 50,000 persons, mostly new settlers and all persons in moderate circumstances, has been utterly desolated. Thousands of people are homeless and in want, and will need aid to carry them through the winter. Some estimates place the number at 5,000. These are the grand totals of distress; some of the details are hardly less pathetic. The dispatches tell of one family of seven persons who lowered themselves into a well for shelter from the flames, and were there suffocated. The number of persons at first reported to have lost their lives in the whole State was twenty it is now found that just that number have been burned to death in a single township. These details establish the fact of a great calamity, which the generous heart of the American people should meet at once.

A Day of Prayer.

The love of a free nation is worth more than the crown of a monarch. What despotism could have done more for a man than the willing, hearty, and eager affection of the people has done for the President? Nothing that science could propose for his comfort or safety, nothing that the ingenuity of a most inventive nation could devise, nothing that affection could suggest, was wanting when his time of need and trial came. At a word, powerful corporations put their best brains and most skilled machinists and engineers at work for him. At a word, night was turned into day, where hundreds of men created a new railroad for his use, and a perfect hospital on noiseless paper wheels was made in seven hours out of an ordinary frame. At a word, all the traffic of great companies was arrested, that no hoarse shriek of passing trains should disturb the rest of the sufferer. Without a word, the finest palaces of comfort were placed at the President's disposal. Stranger still, great throngs of eager and loving people, who gathered at stations along the memorable journey, kept back the cheer of natural enthusiasm, and stood in silence with uncovered heads as the people's President was whirled along to a new chance for life.

It is a grand nation, after all. Its faults are many, but we have a right to be proud of it when any great emergency comes. Then the true manhood of fifty millions of freemen is shown, and that love which no emperor living or dead could buy or win. We may be proud of the nation, and of the President whose personal worth has kindled the nation's love. It is something that the nation can do wonderful things, but much more that it does them when they are richly deserved. Marvellous inventive genius, wonderful power of organization, glorious discipline and self-restraint, are all well; but it is better that the nation has been wise enough to choose a true statesman and a Christian hero as the object of its warm love and unfaltering trust. The people are worthy of such a President, and the President is worthy of such a people.

The President bore the journey well. The inevitable reaction and prostration, after a day of great excitement and fatigue, seem to have passed away, leaving the patient stronger than he was before the trip began. Yet it must have been singularly exhausting. Think how many strong and hearty men went home on Tuesday night fairly worn out with excitement, from watching the half-hourly dispatches which told the story of the great ride for life! Then think how much greater the excitement must have been to a worn and weakened man, after nine weeks of suffering, taken for the first time from his quiet sick room, knowing that it was life or death to him, seeing at hundreds of stations the anxious throngs standing with uncovered heads, and realizing that millions were bowing in prayer to the Omnipotent, at that very hour, that his life might be spared. Such anxiety and such excitement, with the physical fatigue of a long journey by rail on one of the hottest days of the year, might easily have produced a fatal reaction. That the President has endured it all, and seems at this time better and stronger, proves that the resisting power of his good constitution has not yet been wholly exhausted, and gives reason to hope that more healthy surroundings and conditions may restore him to life.

A Lesson to Girls.

The case of Jennie Cramer, which our readers have become familiar with, should be a warning to all girls who are so apt to be careless in forming acquaintances, and who think the caution and advice of parents and guardians spring from an old fogy notion long since exploded. It has not yet been fairly established whether Jennie Cramer died from an excessive dose of chloroform administered by a knave, or whether she committed suicide after the first debauch; but whatever the investigation may prove, one thing is clearly demonstrated, viz: that she lost her life through imprudence and because she was allowed like many girls in this town, to be out nights to form the acquaintance of men who have the outward appearance of gentlemen. Not many years since in this town a poor girl was ruined and murdered by a villain who walks our streets today undisturbed. When she lay in the agonies of death (and she had suffered untold misery and pain), the trembling cur, seeing the possibilities of his work, was afraid, not for her but for himself, appealed in pitiable accents to the physician, "for God's sake, doctor, save her if possible." It was such a man as this that met Jennie Cramer one evening in a public park, and as such men are always on the lookout for victims, so he noticed this beautiful girl and commenced with a handkerchief flirtation to entice her to an acquaintance which led directly to death. She was somewhat vain, and the attention of this debauch flattered her. She had the freedom which girls of the middle and poorer classes in America too frequently have, and her parents permitted her to be abroad at night. Their idea is the idea which prevails too intensely—that a girl can take care of herself. A girl cannot always take care of herself, and where she is left to that idea she will become contaminated, slightly or cruelly as the case may be. Jennie was out at night, and her friends and parents, when too late, learned that in the darkness she had taken the road which leads to death. Her case should be a warning to all girls, and guardians and parents as well.

IF the ingenious compiler of Mother Shipton's poetical prophecy that the world would come to an end in 1881 cannot set up as a prophet on his own account, he can at least claim to have named in his rhyming mood a most phenomenal year. What with a varied assortment of comets, singular atmospheric demonstrations in New England, the remarkable and infrequent mirage seen off the Jersey coast, the intense heat and the extensive and extended drouth in this country, the year has been phenomenal in its natural aspects. It has been marked equally by destructive floods, winds and fires in every part of the globe, resulting in the loss of many lives and waste of much property. Even the crimes of the year have been startling in their number and character, ranging from the assassination of two rulers to the detection of a fifteen or twenty times bigamist. And not the least remarkable and impressive of the year's many strange incidents was the spectacle of a whole people in earnest suppliaction to the Almighty Arbiter of Nations to grant the blessing of an almost miraculous recovery of a beloved ruler.

THE prospects for an honest election and consequent Republican victory in Mississippi improve daily. The most influential of the Democratic journals, led by the Vicksburg Herald, are urging their party to meet the Opposition squarely on the issue of a fair vote and a fair count. As the Herald puts it: "It will be far better for us to elect General Lowry by an honest majority, let it be ever so small, than to place him in office by bulldozing and fraud. It will even be better that he should be defeated than placed in office by methods honest men cannot approve." That is manly, straightforward talk, and if the Bourbons will heed it and be guided by it, a glorious day will have already dawned upon Mississippi.

SEVERAL weeks have passed since Senator Beck announced that he was in favor of admitting the two New York Senators to their seats, and thus allow the Republicans to organize the Senate. During this time a united Democratic effort has been made to induce Mr. Beck to deny that he made any such declaration, but he has declined to stultify himself. Not a Democratic journal or statesman has come to his defence. He stands to-day as the only Democrat in the whole country who is willing to place the interests of his country above those of his party. He does not say he is in favor of depriving his party of any of its rights. He merely says he is opposed to having his party steal the rights of the Republican party.

THE old story that crime is an unprofitable profession. The train robbers who boarded the train on the Chicago and Alton secured in all, it is said, less than $3,000. Seventeen men were engaged in the conspiracy, and, if they escape arrest, will receive less than $200 a man for a piece of work which required great courage, subjected them to great risk, must have cost them a good deal of preparation, and leaves them all with a future chance of the penitentiary, not to say Judge Lynch's rope, upon detection. The dividends of highway robbery are too small and the assessments are too sure.

THE Russian government proposes to institute a still closer watch upon all foreign correspondents in St. Petersburg, and a central bureau will examine all dispatches. The probabilities are that examination will not be the only process resorted to, and as a consequence Russian news will have to be received with about as much confidence as if Baron Munchausen was actually in supreme command of the telegraphic tricklings. Between grafting and pruning, the original stock item will be totally obliterated.

THE President seems disposed to take a hand in the inability question. He asked on Friday to see any member of his Cabinet who wished to consult him, and did see some of them.

Reformer Wolf A Persistent Bolter.

Philadelphia Times of Saturday.

The following announcement of Representative Charles S. Wolf, of Union county, has received by telegraph at The Times office last evening. The public will await with decided interest any further movement on the part of Mr. Wolf in furtherance of his purpose:

To the Editor of the Times: The black flag has been raised against the Independent Republicans of Pennsylvania. Please announce that on my own responsibility I am an independent Republican candidate for State Treasurer, in full sympathy with the administration and against the rule of bosses. I will stump the State and give my reasons for this action.

CHARLES S. WOLF.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Sept. 9.

[By taking the course proclaimed in his card, Mr. Wolf has corroborated the charge so persistently made against him that he cares nothing for the Republican party, except when he dictates its nominations and measures. If his card means anything, it is that he has left the Republican party, and he will soon learn that outside the organization he is as harmless as a kitten.

Notes and Observations.

Of 21 babies recently born in Columbus, Ga., 19 were boys.

A book was recently returned to the Boston public library which had been missing for more than twenty years.

An angry wife chased her tippling husband out of a saloon at Menomonee, Wis., late one night, but lost sight of him and went home alone. He was next morning found drowned in a deep well, into the unguarded mouth of which he had fallen in his hasty flight.

Mayor Benyaurd, of New Orleans, while at the mouth of Red river the other day, made observations which satisfied him that the Mississippi is cutting for itself a channel to the gulf through the Atchafalaya river, which will in the near future become its outlet and leave New Orleans on a shallow stream.

A doctor of Pittsburg, has preserved in his office what is said to be the smallest heart that ever beat in a human breast, so far as the records show. It is less than one-fourth the average size, but belonged to one of the "biggest hearted" men in the west—a man who was noted for his generosity and bravery.

It now appears that the guillotine was not invented by the humane French physician, Dr. Guillotin. A picture of this instrument of death has been discovered in a series of paintings in the Chapel bridge, at Lucerne, representing the persecutions of the church in the province of Helvetia under the pagan Emperors of Rome.

Last Sunday morning one of the compositors of the Tallahassee Union, while on a visit at Mandarin, saw a cat catch, kill and partly devour an alligator. The alligator was about one and a half feet long and was lying on the bank of the river near the wharf. The cat was of medium size. It only required one minute for the cat to shake the life out of the alligator.

State Notes.

Gilbert Harrison, of Fulton county, lost a foot the other day by an accident in a lime kiln.

Woods fires are raging in Erie county on a larger scale than ever they burnt there before.

The tanners in Pike and Wayne counties have been compelled to stop work for want of water.

Throughout Chester county the drought has destroyed what promised to be a large crop of grapes.

Most of the work along the lower end of the Philadelphia division, Pennsylvania railroad, was done at night during the hot wave.

ADVENTURE OF TWO YOUNG WOMEN.—Some young ladies of Canton went bathing the other day. Two of them got on a plank which floated into the middle of the stream, and as they couldn't swim they were in a plight. Their companions gave the alarm and for a time there was great excitement, as it was reported that the girls were drowned. Two young men secured a skiff and pulling rapidly down the stream soon overtook the craft with its precious load of frightened nudity. It was a trying situation, but it couldn't be helped, and the young ladies were soon out of danger and into their clothes.—Sioux City (Iowa) Journal.

ROUGE ET NOIR.—A Bradford girl at the seashore was the innocent cause of a sensation. The fair damsel appeared on the piazza of a leading hotel in a breezy muslin dress. Her tootsies wootsies were encased in low slippers.

Following an absurd fashion, she wore on one leg a black silk stocking, and on the other a fiery red.

A Bradford man, also at the same resort, sat a few feet away. Looking at the lady and her pretty hose, he remarked in a voice audible all over the piazza: "Bet five dollars on the red."—Bradford Era.

NEITHER George Francis Train, S. J. Tilden, Sergeant Bates nor Private Dalzell have yet been heard from on the disability question. These are very serious omissions. The nation is hungering for the views of these eminent erratics.

THE hurricane announced by the Signal Service Department passed over a portion of South Carolina on Saturday. At Beaufort the damage was considerable. Forty lives were lost, all colored.

THE wheat crop of Russia is estimated to be one of the largest ever raised in the Empire. This will lessen the American export, and make the price cheap.

Poetry.

Speak Nae Ill.

Other people have their faults
And so have ye as well;
But all ye chance to see or hear
Ye have no right to tell.

If ye canna speak o' good,
Take care, and see and feel;
Earth has all too much o' woe
And not enough o' weal.

Be careful that ye make nae strife
Wi' meddling tongue and brain,
For ye will find enough to do
If ye but look at hame.

If ye canna speak o' good,
Oh, dinna speak at all,
For there is grief and woe enough
On this terrestrial ball.

If ye should feel like picking flaws,
Ye better go, I ween,
And read the book that tells ye all
About the mote and beam.

If ye canna speak o' good,
Take care, and see and feel;
Earth has all too much o' woe,
And not enough o' weal.

Dinna lend a ready ear
To gossip or to strife,
Or, perhaps, 'twill make for ye
Nae funny thing of life.

If ye canna speak o' good,
Oh, dinna speak at all,
For there is grief and woe enough
On this terrestrial ball.

Oh, dinna add to others' woe,
Nor mock it with your mirth;
But give ye kindly sympathy
To suffering ones of earth.

If ye canna speak o' good,
Take care, and see and feel;
Earth has all too much o' woe,
And not enough o' weal.

Our Story Teller.

The Brakeman's Story.

A rough-looking man? Yes, perhaps I am. We ain't all of us responsible for our out side husk, no more than a horse-chesnut or a hazel-nut is. The kind of life I lead can't be lived in white kid gloves and dress coats. I wasn't brought up with many advantages, and I'm only a brakeman on the Renselaer and Saratoga line. Old Jones was telling you about me, was he, sir? He'd better hold his tongue. There's more profitable subjects of conversation than I am. But old Jones means well enough, and if he told you to ask me how that stripe of white hair came on black mane, I ain't the man to go back on him. Oh, you needn't beg my pardon, sir! I don't mind talking about it now, though the time was when I couldn't speak of it without a big lump coming in my throat.

We hadn't been married long, Polly and me, when it happened. Polly was a trim, bright-eyed slip of a girl as ever you'd wish to see. She was one of the waitresses in the Albany lunch room; and the first time I ever set eyes upon her I made up my mind to make that girl my wife. So, when they raised my wages, I took heart and asked her if she would have them with me, with a wedding ring thrown into the bargain.

"Do you really mean it, Jake?" said she, looking me full in the face, with those dark blue eyes of hers, that are like the skies at night.

"I do really mean it, Polly," said I.

"Then," said she, putting both her hands in mine, "I'll trust you. I've no living relation to advise me, so I can only take council with my own heart."

So we were married. I rented a little one-story house, under the hill on the height, that overlooked the Hudson—a cozy place with a good sized wood-pile at the rear, for winter meant winter in those parts, and the snow used to be drifted up even with our door-yard fence many a cold gray morning. And everything went smooth until Polly began to object to my mates at the White Blackbird, and the Saturday evenings I spent with the boys, after my train was safely run into a side track at the junction.

"Why, Polly, girl," said I, "where's the harm? A man can't live by himself, like an oyster in his shell, and a social glass never yet harmed any one."

"No," said Polly, "not a social glass, Jake, but the habit. And if you would only put every five-cent piece that you spend for liquor into little Bertie's tiny savings bank—"

"Pshaw!" said I. "I'm not a drunkard, and I never mean to become one. And no one likes to be preached to by his wife, Polly. Remember that, my girl, and you'll save yourself a deal of trouble."

I kissed her and went away. But that was the beginning of the little grave shadow thet grew on my Polly's face, like a creeping fog over the hills, and that she has never got rid of since.

It was a sore point between us—what the politicians called a vexed question. I felt that Polly was always watching me; and I didn't choose to be put in leading-strings by a woman. So—I shame to say it—I went to the White Blackbird oftener than ever, and I didn't always count the glasses of beer that I drank, and once or twice, of a particularly cold night, I let myself be persuaded into drinking something stronger than beer; and my brain wasn't the kind that could stand liquid fire with impunity. And Polly cried, and I lost my temper, and—well I don't like to think of these things now. Thank goodness they're over and gone!

That afternoon, as I stood on the back platform of my car, with my arms folded and my eyes fixed on the snowy waste of flat fields through which the iron track seemed to extend itself like an endless black serpent, I looked my own life in the face. I made up my mind that I had been behaving like a brute.

"What are those senseless fellows at the White Blackbird to me,' muttered I, 'as compared with one of Polly's sweet bright looks? I will give the whole thing up. I'll draw the line just here now. We shall be off duty early to-night. I'll go home and astonish Polly!"

But, as night fell, the blinding drift of a great storm came with it. We were belated by the snow which collected on the rails, and when we reached Earldale there was a little girl, who had been sent on in care of the conductor who, must either wait three or four hours for a way train in the cold and cheerless station, or be taken home across a snowy field by some one who knew the way.

I thought of my own little children.

"I'll take her," said I—and lifting her up I gathered my coarse, warm coat about her, and I started for the long, cold walk under the whispering pines along the edge of the river. I honestly believe she would have frozen to death if she had been left in the cold station until the way train could call for her. And when I had left her safe in charge of her aunt, I saw by the old kitchen time-piece that it was ten o'clock.

"Polly will think I have slipped back into the Slough Despond," I said to myself with half a smile; "but I'll give her an agreeable surprise!"

Plowing down amid the snow-drift, through a grove of pine trees that edged a ravine at the back of my house, I sprang lightly on the doorstep; the door was shut and locked. I went around to the front door. Here I effected an entrance, but the fire was dying on the hearth, and little Bertie, tucked up in his crib, called out:

"Papa, is that you?"

"Where is mamma, my son?" said I looking eagerly around at the desolate room.

"Gone out with the baby in her arms to look for you," he said. "Didn't you meet her, papa?"

I stood a minunte in silence.

"Lie still, Bertie," said I, in a voice that sounded strange and husky even to myself. "I will go and bring her back."

And I thought with dismay of the blinding snow-storm outside, the treacherous gorges which lay between here and the White Blackbird, the trackless woods, through which it was difficult to find one's way even in the sunshine of noonday, and—worst of all—the lonely track, across which an "express" shot like a meteor a few minutes before midnight. Oh, heaven! what possible doom might I not have brought upon myself by the wretched passion in which I had gone away that morning.

The town clock, sounding dim and muffled through the storm, struck eleven as I hurried down. Eleven—and who knew what a length of time might elapse before I cou'd find her? And like a fiery p antasmagoria before my mind's eye, I beheld the wild rush of the midnight express, and dreaded—I knew not what. For all that I could realize was that the storm was growing fiercer with every moment, and Polly and the baby were out in its fury!

As steadily as I could I worked my way down toward the track, but more than once I became bewildered, and had to stop and reflect before I could resume my quest. And when, at length, I came out close to a ruined wood and water station on the edge of the track, I knew that I was full a half a mile below the White Blackbird.

And in the distance I heard the long, shrill shriek of the midnight train!

Some one else had heard it, too, for, as I stood thus, I saw, faintly visible through the blinding snow, a shadowy figure issue from the ruined shed and come out upon the track, looking with a bewildered, uncertain air up and down—the form of Polly, my wife, with the little baby in her arms!

I hurried down to her as fast as the rapidly increasing snow-drifts would let me, but I was only just in time to drag her from the place of peril, and stand, breathlessly holding her back, while the fiery-eyed monster of steam swept by with a rush and a rattle that nearly took our breath away!

"Polly!" I cried, "Polly! speak to me!"

She turned her wandering gaze toward me, with her vague eyes that seemed scarcely to recognize me.

"Have you seen my husband?" said she. "One Jacob Cotterel, brakeman on the local express?"

"Polly! little woman! don't you know me?" I gasped.

"And I thought, perhaps," she added, vacantly, "you might have met him. It's very cold here, and—and—"

And then she fainted in my arms. The long, long brain fever that followed was a sort of death. There was a time when they told me she never would know me again, but, thank God, she did. She recovered at last. And since that night I never have tasted a drop of liquor, and, please heaven, I never will again. The baby, bless its dear little heart, wasn't harmed at all. It lay snug and warm on its mother's breast all the while. But if I hadn't happened to be close by them at that instant the night express would have groun them into powder!

And the white stripe came into my hair upon the night of that fearful snow storm. That's how it happened, sir.

Marriage Laws.

The Anglo Saxon marriage law in 1848 read as follows: "By marriage the husband and wife are one person in law, that is, the very existence of the woman is suspended during the marriage, or, at least, is incorporated and consolidated into that of the husband, under whose wing, protection and covert she performs everything, and therefore called one in law." In France, a femme covert is said to be covert baron, or under the protection and influence of her husband, her baron or lord. The husband by the old law could give his wife moderate correction, but this power of correction was confined within reasonable limits, and the husband was prohibited from using any violence to his wife. The civil law gave the husband the same or larger authority over his wife, allowing him for some misdemeanors to beat his wife severely with whips and cudgels, for others only to bestow moderate chastisements. But in the days of Charles I. this power of correction began to be doubted, and a wife may now have security of peace against him. Yet the lower ranks of people, who were always fond of the old common law, still claim and exact their ancient privilege, and the courts of law still permit a husband to restrain his wife of her liberty in case of any gross misconduct. In ancient Hindoo dramas women do not speak the same language as their husbands, but employ the dialect of slaves.

A Smart Jewess.

Ado phus Fitzmelon was a "smart young man." It was his firm conviction that with the opposite sex he was irresistible. One evening Fitzmelon was at the opera, and in an adjoining box he espied a beautiful young lady, without a mail attendant. He nodded to his companions, and remarked that he must make a conquest. So into the adjoining box he made his way, and unceremoniously seated himself by the young lady's side. She looked up in surprise. Adolphus smiled sweetly and begged pardon; he must have been mistaken; he thought he recognized in her an acquaintance. She informed him he had been mistaken. "Still," ventured Adolphus, "I hope I don't intrude." The lady made no reply, but turned her attention to the stage, where a scene was transpiring in which she was much interested. At length Adolphus addressed her again. Turning quickly, she said, "You annoy me sir," and her bright eyes flashed. "Bless me!" cried Adolphus drawing back with mock terror, "don't eat me." The lady smiled a sweet, beaming smile, as she replied, "Be not alarmed, sir. I am a Jewess, and my religion forbids me to eat pork!" Unfortunately for Adolphus his friends heard the rejoinder, and he is not likely soon to hear the last of his passage with the beautiful Jewess.

Young man be happy—hoot, holler, skip, gambol and snap your fingers at the nightmare of a new overcoat for next winter. Last fall a Canadian genius shivered awhile, and then reflected awhile, and the result was the purchase of a box of mustard plasters, these were distributed around on his frame where they would do the most good, and while men in beaver overcoats shivered with cold he was warm and happy in his shirt-sleeves. One dollar takes you through a hard winter, and you come out in the spring fat.

The most eminent physicians of Europe unite in declaring that early rising is the great and prevailing cause of nervous disease, spinal curvature and paralysis. (It may, perhaps be necess ry, or, at least, proper, to explain to our readers that we print this outrageous and glaring campaign document for the purpose of influencing a family in the country whom we are going to visit, and with whom the appalling insanity of a five o'clock breakfast is hereditary.)

"What is your business?" asked a Harvard student of an old printer as the two stood at the Parker House bar waiting for a cocktail that the bartender was preparing. The printer looked the young man straight in the eye and said, with great solemnity, "I am an erector of metalic messengers of thought, or as I am sometimes known, a journeyman printer."

The Dauphin county Democratic Convention unanimously denounced the shooting of President Garfield as a disgrace to civilization, a fragrant outrage upon the people, and an insult to republican institutions, and expressed sympathy with the President and hope for his early restoration to health.

Local Small Talk.

—It is getting to be a regular thing for Snow Shoe trains to be several hours behind time.

—People are cautioned against carrying umbrellas at this time, as they might scare the rain away.

—It took forty men seven hours at the Altoona shops to prepare the car that carried President Garfield to Long Branch.

—According to that important individual known as the "oldest citizen" this is the hottest weather we have had for forty years.

—Barnum's show will exhibit in Altoona on the 15th inst. According to announcements made, this is really the "only" show on earth.

—Street Commissioner Shaughensy has made substantial repairs to several crossings in town, and has just put in a new sewer on Linn street.

—The boiler for Haag's steam grist mill has been placed in position, and before many days he expects to be grinding out a superior quality of flour.

—At the meeting of Town Council, the other night, Market Clerk Shaughensy turned over $16.40 as market fees collected by him during the past three weeks.

—About forty boys helped a farmer to dispose of a load of apples Tuesday on Thomas street, and the farmer didn't pay them a cent for their trouble, either.

—The Shamokin Herald was sent to us this week with a patent outside and not a word of reading matter on the inside. If brother Heffelfinger finds this manner of publication profitable, we are sure it is easy enough to be pleasant.

—The engine attached to local freight Thursday was compelled to receive its water supply from the fire plug before the Bush House, owing to a general scarcity along the road. No water can be had between Bellefonte and Port Matilda.

—The busy appearance of things generally about Duncan & Co's machine shops is noticeable to everyone who happens that way. The shops are crowded with work and the handsome new engine and pump for the Philipsburg water works will shortly be completed.

—Every store in Bellefonte was closed Tuesday between the hours of 10 and 12 a. m., in compliance with Mayor Power's request, and clerks and proprietors alike assembled at the Court House and sent up a silent prayer for the preservation of our President.

—A great many of our exchanges favor the abolishment of the hip-pocket, as in it is concealed more treachery and evil than in the heels of two dozen mules and a library of dime novels. This may be true, but we believe we'll risk our'n in the hip-pocket, at least for the present.

—The borough has been engaged for several days at grading and otherwise improving the public road leading out into Spring township along Logan branch. This will doubtless be appreciated by the farmers who were compelled to use the road, as heretofore its general bad condition was the cause of more than one breakdown.

—State Senator Laird, of Greensburg, has appointed Martin Nelson McGeary to a free scholarship in the State College, after a full and complete examination lasting over five hours. There were quite a number of applicants, but Mr. McGeary, standing the best examination, was chosen as the representative of the 39th district.

—An observant contemporary notes that whenever a newspaper says a a kind word of a man, that man never discovers the favor; but if a newspaper handles a man a little roughly, the man finds it out by eight o'clock the next morning. This is the kind of a man who, when conferring with the editor upon his grievance, says his "attention has been called" to the article in question.

—Mr. Gin Gumboo, a Chinaman, arrived in town Tuesday morning, and during the course of the day dropped in to our office and informed us that he would establish a laundry in Bellefonte if he met with sufficient encouragement. Gin's partner, Shin Lee, will arrive from Pittsburg in a few days, and then things will boom about here. Our girls had better be very careful or the first thing they know we will chronicle an elopement, and in which John will figure prominently.

—A horse on Allegheny street attempted to run away with a ten-year old boy in a truck wagon Wednesday morning, and probably would have succeeded had not several lookers on ran to the rescue of the boy after the horse had got fairly started. The boy was from the country, and his name, we learned, was Daley, from somewhere in Benner township. Farmers and others ought to be very careful about allowing children to handle their horses, for there is no telling what moment they will take a notion to run off.

—A fire occurred on the hillside at the residence of Daniel Rhoads, Esq., Tuesday afternoon shortly after dinner, caused by somebody setting fire to the dead grass, which, owing to its extreme dryness and great length, burned like so much old hay. The fire was noticed before it had gained great headway, and speedily extinguished. Little damage was done, but a few of the neighbors were nearly scared out of their senses. A few of them had already begun to remove their household goods, and nearly all the woman in the neighborhood had their China and silverware tied in blankets and sheets ready for removal. Just who set fire to the grass we failed to learn, but Mr. Rhoad's house made a narrow escape.

Praying for the President.

The union prayer meeting held in the Court House Tuesday forenoon from eleven to twelve o'clock, for the purpose of asking Divine aid in restoring our wounded President to health and usefulness again, was largely attended by our citizens, and many earnest and sincere prayers ascended to heaven imploring Almighty God to lend the healthful influence of His grace in this hour of affliction. Nearly all the business places in town were closed between the hours of 10 and 12 a. m., and everyone united in the supplication in behalf of our President.

The Rev. Mr. Luarie opened the meeting by calling upon the audience to sing "From every stormy wind that blows," after which he read the 20th chapter of II. Kings. The reverend gentleman then offered an earnest prayer, followed by a few remarks. "What a friend we have in Jesus" was then sung by the large audience, after which Revs. Pennypacker and Palmer sent up supplications for heavenly aid in the President's behalf. "All the way my Savior leads me" and "Holy spirit, faithful guide" were next sung by the audience, and prayers offered by Rev. John Hewit, Mr. Durbin S. Gray and Mr. E. C. Humes. After singing "He leadeth me, oh, blessed thought," Mr. Hewit invited the audience and people of all denominations to join the Episcopalians in the evening in a special religious service in behalf of President Garfield. He then pronounced the benediction and the meeting was dismissed.

Altogether the day was sacredly observed by all classes and creeds in Bellefonte, and if the power of prayer can save to the nation the usefulness of its chief executive, death could have no possible terror to our minds.

Destructive Mountain Fire.

A fire occurred on the railroad trestle near Snow Shoe Wednesday morning, but was extinguished after considerable difficulty. The forest fires, which have been raging for some time, were not, as was thought, entirely extinguished by the recent rains, and at an early hour yesterday morning it was found the timbers in the trestle had become ignited from the mountain fire raging near by. A number of Berwind, White & Co.'s men immediately responded, and after a hard effort succeeded in saving the structure from total destruction. A telephonic despatch to this paper states that a terrible fire is still raging in the woods hard by, and in close proximity to a number of dwelling houses, and the gravest fears are entertained for the safety of property. Nearly all Berwind, White Co.'s hands are engaged at fighting the consuming flames, and it is feared great damage will result before the firey element can be conquered.

Slight Accident.

Our correspondent at Hublersburg sends us the following in relation to a slight accident that occurred near that place on Wednesday last:

"Yesterday afternoon, at about five o'clock, Jeremiah Sluterbeck, while at work in the Curtin ore bank here had his right arm broken between the wrist and elbow, by an unexpected fall of ore and dirt in the ore bank. When the accident occurred he was at work near by, and being caught in some manner he fell backwards, and the entire mass, over three tons in all, came near covering him. He fortunately escaped with but a broken arm. A messenger was sent for Dr. Fisher, but he being absent from home, Mr. Sluterbeck was conveyed to his home at Washington Furnace. The arm was repaired by a resident physician of that place, and the unfortunate man is resting easy. He made a very narrow escape from instant death."

—The engine attached to the Snow Shoe passenger train ran off the track Tuesday afternoon at what is known as Clark's, and as a consequence came into Bellfonte about six hours late.

The School Board Once More.

DAILY NEWS: Criticism of the acts of public officials generally result in promoting the public good. I am prompted to this remark by your late notices of the different treasurers of the school board of our borough. I regard them as timely and in place. There are few men elected to public offices who do not take advantage of every opportunity to promote self-interest more than they do to promote public welfare. This, to my knowledge, has been exemplified by more than one member of the school board during the past ten years. Petty peculation would appear to be the prime object of serving the dear people gratuitously. So long as they could assist to control the board for personal motives they were willing to serve—when they failed, they resigned.

These facts have been as fully developed in the election of teachers as they have in the spoils of office. In fact they boasted that their candidates "were in," all they cared for at this time. In violation of law, they assisted in the election of persons (not teachers) to take charge of our public schools during the ensuing term, who did not have the certificates required by law, and who, since the election, have been examined and failed to stand the average qualification. It has come to light that one of the persons chosen by the astute board as a teacher failed in the examination, and did not secure a certificate of the average standard required by the board, and who was advised by Superintendent Wolf "not to teach." This aroused the sympathy of friends, who lost no opportunity to solicit and importune Superintendent Wolf to raise the numbers of the certificate to the required average.

It is said that he consented to a re-examination, but refused to raise the average of the certificate. At the meeting of the board of directors last week, this certificate was presented to the board, altered or raised, as could plainly be seen. The question now is, whether it is a forged certificate or whether Superintendent Wolf has yielded to the importunities of the friends and stultified himself by raising the numbers. If the latter is the case, he has compromised himself and occupies a very unenviable position—in short, it is a species of official conduct that strikes a blow at the principles of our public school system. Our school directors have manifested dereliction of their duties by passing it without making the matter a subject of inquiry or investigation, and requiring the County Superintendent to explain it. It is clear to every unbiased mind that the school teachers of our borough have been appointed on the principles of barter and trade, "if you vote for my candidate I'll vote for yours," without regard to merit. It is time that this practice should cease, for it has been carried on to the detriment of the rising generation, as well as to those of the tax-payers. Know no friends, should be the position of the directors who would vote for teachers on account of merit only. Professional public pensioners should share no place in the school room. Then, will justice be done? A.

An Avenger in Petticoats.

The following item, which we find floating on the journalistic sea, we publish for the benefit of a class of young men about here who might profit by the lesson it teaches: A number of young rowdies have for some time been congregating at a prominent corner and their chief occupation seemed to be to insult young ladies who happened to pass alone after dark. Among those so insulted was a young lady whose lover, John Cline, resolved to be avenged on the persons who had insulted the lady. On Saturday night last he dressed himself in female garments and was spoken to by the young man who had insulted the young woman. Cline replied, and after a few words the insulter took a walk with Cline, imagining him to be a female. The two walked into the country a short distance, and finally, as the result of their conversation, Cline suddenly turned around and struck his companion in the face, knocking him down. He then sprang on him and gave him a sound thrashing, after which he returned home, satisfied with the evening's adventure.

—Associate Judge Robert L. Gamble, of Blair county, died at his residence in Altoona at a very early hour on Tuesday morning. The cause of his death was apoplexy, being stricken with this dreadful disease on Thursday of last week, and from the effects of which he never rallied. Judge Gamble was born in Centre county in 1830, and was well known to many of our citizens, who will regret to hear of his death. During life he held many positions of honor and trust, in all of which he acquitted himself nobly, and always enjoyed the confidence of his fellow men.

Valuable Farm for Sale.

seven miles southwest from Bellefonte, containing 162 Acres, more or less, of the very best limestone land, about 30 acres of which remain covered with good timber, mostly of white oak.

The improvements are a two-story Dwelling House, roomy and commodious with cellar and vault, basement kitchen and pantry: well and cistern near the door; oven-house, smoke-house and tool-house; a large Bank Barn, with horse-power shed attached; carriage house, corn crib, and other necessary buildings.

Besides an Orchard of choice apples, there are cherries, peaches, grapes, and other fruits in their season.

Spring Creek runs through the place.

IRON ORE.

From surface indications and tests made, it is believed that a valuable deposit of the best iron ore underlies the western part of the farm, needing only to be developed to enrich the owner.

Pleasantly located, with a soil of great fertility, and possessing the advantages of town and country in its proximity to churches, schools, mills, stores and markets, this property will commend itself to any one who is either looking for a desirable and comfortable home or wanting to make a good investment of capital.

HOUSE AND LOT.

An adjoining half-acre lot with a house thereon, will be sold either with the farm, or separately, to suit purchasers.

MRS. LYDIA E. PINKHAM
OF LYNN, MASS.

DISCOVERER OF
LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.
The Positive Cure
For all Female Complaints.

This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of Vegetable Properties that are harmless to the most delicate invalid. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, as relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, a permanent cure is effected, as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits, it is to-day recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

In fact it has proved to be the greatest and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach.

It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sent by mail in the form of pills, also in the form of Lozenges, on receipt of price, $1.00, per box, for either. Mrs. PINKHAM freely answers all letters of inquiry. Send for pamphlet. Address as above Mention this paper.

THE LATEST NEWS.

The President Convalescent—Almost Encouraging Outlook.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 9.—After the morning dressing Dr. Bliss said the patient was doing first-rate. He was restless during the early part of the night, but slept very well after 12 o'clock.

"How does his condition compare with yesterday?" was asked.

"He shows much improvement to-day and is better than he has been for eight or ten days."

"Do you anticipate a continued improvement?"

"Yes; we will be able, I think, to give you still better news in a day or two."

"How are his pulse and temperature, doctor?"

"Good; the pulse is 104, temperature 98.7, respiration 18."

"Well, that is good ground for encouragement?, is it not?"

"First-rate."

The President's appetite is much better this morning. When given some chicken he remarked to his wife that he felt as if he could eat all. This is one of the most desirable indications. If the patient's appetite returns the attending surgeons will be more sanguine.

THE RETIRED DOCTORS.

There is much comment on the retirement of three of the attending surgeons, and some persons are inclined to believe the matter as extraordinary and surrounded by mystery. Information obtained from an authorative source, however, does not appear to warrant any such opinion. Mrs. Dr. Edison one of the nurses, also retires from her duties in that capacity, and she and Dr. Woodward expect to leave the Branch to-day. The movement is explained by those in a position to know by the statement that the President recently informed his wife that he would prefer having all male attendants henceforth.

6:30 p. m.—At 12 m. to-day the President's temperature was 98.4, pulse 94, respiration 17. At the evening dressing (5:30 p. m.) his temperature was 99.1, pulse 100, respiration 18. He has taken a liberal amount of food, both solid and fluid, with apparent relish. By special request of the President it has been made our duty to say in this public manner to Surgeon General J. K. Barnes, Surgeon J. J. Woodward, and Dr. Robert Reyburn, that in dispensing with their services as his medical attendants he was actuated only by a wish to relieve them of labor and responsibility which in his improved condition he could no longer impose upon them. Both the President and Mrs. Garfield desire to express to these gentlemen personally and in some public manner their high appreciation of the great skill and discretion which they have so constantly exercised as associate counsel in the management of his case up to the present time.

D. W. BLISS.
F. H. HAMILTON.

ANOTHER DOCTOR LESS.

Private Secretary Brown, in response to an inquiry whether or not it was true Mrs. Dr. Edson was going to return to Washington to-day, said it was a fact. The Secretary would not say any more on the subject. It can be stated on the very best authority that Mrs. Edson's withdrawal from the case was not on account of any misunderstanding whatever, and was merely to please the President in his request that the number of attendants be decreased. The only reason her services were dispensed with, in preference to some one else, is said by those acquainted with the details of the case to be in compliance with the President's desire, he preferring that the attendants henceforth should be males. Mrs. Edson left for Washington this morning. Doctor Barnes and Woodward also left for Washington on the morning train on business demanding their immediate attention.

THE CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

The morning bulletin was not assuring. It was considered to be fair, but there was a noticeable feeling of anxiety for later reports from the sick room. This anxiety continued until noon, when Dr. Bliss announced he would soon be able to give the exact condition of the President, as he was about to make an examination. The Doctor later stated, in answer to inquiries: "The President is getting along splendidly. He is better at the present time than for many days."

"How do you account for this remarkably rapid change for the better?"

"Well, the wind, you see, has shifted to the north; it is somewhat cooler and much less oppressive. The pure atmosphere is commencing to have its effect."

"What does this extraordinary change indicate, doctor?"

"It indicates convalescence."

"Do you really think the patient is convalescent?"

"I do surely, and the symptoms bear me out in that theory."

"Do you think the change will be permanent?"

"There is every indication it will. The gland and wound are both doing well. The former suppurates quite sufficiently and from the wound the discharge is more free and of better character. The wound looks brighter and the color is better in every respect."

"Well, doctor, you are surely gratified with this change?"

"Indeed I am. We will be able to get the President in a condition to make a communication to Congress yet, if this continues."

"How does Mrs. Garfield take it?"

"The good lady is very happy this morning, and feels very much encouraged with the outlook."

"Has the patient had any whisky to-day?',

"No; not since last night at 12 o'clock."

"Then you cannot attribute this gain to whisky?"

(The doctor, jocularly), "Oh, I guess it was that last dose that did it. Enema is now stopped. The President had to-day some woodcock, beef extract, milk porridge and some toast. He takes these with great relish. He could eat more than would be good for him. This is the first time he has really relished his food for a considerable period."

"Has the President said anything that would indicate how his spirits are?"

"Oh, yes; he says amusing things continually. For instance, a while ago, he said to Gen. Swain, 'Can't you get up some contrivance by which we can pass away the time?'"

Attorney General McVeigh said he felt much gratified with the President's condition, and thought he would continue to improve. The Attorney General added that there were no grounds for the statements to the effect that there was illfeeling among the attending surgeons, and that the ill feeling was the cause of the withdrawels yesterday.

About 1 o'clock the wind shifted again to the east and since a staff breeze has been blowing and the thermometer has fallen from 89 to 77. The evening was desidedly the most plesent during the week, and the avenues presented a very lively appearance. Special services were held in the churches here, as else where, for the recovery of the President. The Cabinet attended the Episcopal Church at Elberon.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 9, 8.30 a. m. The condition of the gland and wound are improving. He was somewhat wakeful but not restless during the night, and slept sufficiently. On the whole he has made favorable progress during the last 24 hours. Pulse 100, temperature 98, respiration 17.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 9, 6.30 p. m. The President's pulse at noon was 100, temperature 98, respiration 17, and at 5.30 his pulse was 100, temperature 98, respiration 18. It is believed without refering to the records, that this is the first day since the development of the traumatic fever that the temperature, pulse and respiration have been so near normal and uniform throughout the entire day.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 10, 8.30 a. m.—The President slept well during the night, awakening at intervals of half to an hour. There is a perceptible increase of strength, with improved digestive power. The tumefaction of the parotid gland has entirely disappeared, and suppuration greatly diminished. The wound continues to improve and presents a more healthy appearance. Pulse 105, temperature 99, respiration 18.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 10, 1 p. m.—The President's pulse is now 109. The fever came on later last night than usual, and lasted longer. His temperature and respiration are now normal. His general condition is favorable.

Bliss in Good Spirits.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 12.—Dr. Bliss, in conversation with the representative of the Associated Press to-night, stated that the President had experienced a very good day. The Doctor was in remarkably good spirits and predicted general changes for the better in the next few days. He said the wound was discharging good healthy pus, and that the progress of granulation could be readily observed. He was quite positive that the ball had become thoroughly encysted, and discussing this feature, said that he had only succeeded in getting the cleansing catheter in ten years, when he used it last. Speaking about the parotid gland, the Doctor said the swelling had entirely disappeared, and that it was almost miraculous how rapidly the gland had healed. The supperating cavity now is almost entirely closed. The evening dressing occurred at 5 o clock to-day—more than an hour earlier than usual. The President was anxious to have it over and requested that it be done at that time. When asked how he accounted for the high fever Dr. Bliss explained that the President had been lying in a malarious atmosphere for a long time, and it was probably the effects of that developing itself. He said oftentimes when a person in a debilitated state had been in a malarious climate and moved into a salubrious atmosphere, the result is the development of malarial symptoms, and consi dering this to be the President's complaint the proper remedies have been applied for relieving him. It having been stated that an operation would be performed on the President while Dr. Agnew is here with a view of extracting the ball, that subject was brought to the doctor's attention. He said, "that is ridiculous. In the first place the President is in no condition to stand an operation and if an operation should be anticipated the whole number of surgeons engaged in the case will be present before it occurs you may rest assured. It has been feared that probably the parotid affection would result in injuring the President's hearing. During the day hearing was tested and the result was satisfactory, showing that no injury had been occasioned.

Through a Bridge.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 10.—The worst railroad accident that has occurred near Louisville for many years, took place last night on the Shelbyville branch of the Louisville, Cincinnati and Lexington Short Line Railroad. The Short Line was recently bought by the Louisville and Nashville system. The accident occured seventeen miles from Louisville, and was caused by the derailing of the train, the cars of which, running off the track, smashed through the bridge over Floyd's Fork creek. A terrible wreck was caused.

Another account says the train struck a cow about fifty feet from the west end of the bridge, which threw the engine off the track. It ran into the side of the bridge, knocking it down, and then fell about thirty feet from the track to the bed of the creek. All of the train is a total wreck. There were six killed and about twenty wounded.

Terrible Domestic Tragedy.

DANVILLE, VA., Sept. 10.—Near Whitehall, this county, yesterday, Robert Williams and wife had a quarrel. The wife went to a magistrate from whom she obtained a warrant for the arrest of Williams. The magistrate appointed Williams' own son as a special constable to execute the warrant. On arriving at Williams' house with the warrant the dead body of Williams was found lying upon a bedquilt in the yard with his head nearly severed from his body with an axe lying beside it. It was ascertained that the two daughters of Williams, who had been left with him by their mother when she went for the warrant, had fled, after having perpetrated the murder and have not yet been arrested. Williams was an educated man of good family, but addicted to drink, and when drunk dangerous.

Republican Success in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Complete returns of the city election show the Democrats have elected candidate for Surveyor and Supervisor in the Third and Sixth wards. With these exceptions the Republicans have made a clean sweep. Sedgwick, for Sheriff, has the highest majority, 3,404. Blake, for Mayor, has 2,092, and thence the other majorities range down to a few hundred. It is possible that the official count will change the figures in detail, but is not likely to affect results.

The count of the register of elections to-day shows that Grady, Democrat, has been elected Tax Collector by a majority of 396. Otherwise the result as heretofore stated remains unchanged.

Arizona Asking for Arms.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Dispatches have been received at the War Department to-day from Acting Governor John J. Gother, Arizona, and Governor Sheldon, New Mexico, asking the Department furnish arms to the white settlers in the Indian country where disturbances have been reported. To both these telegrams a reply was made, and arms will be furnished if the regular requisition is made upon the Ordnance Department, under the provision of law applying to this matter. Each of these Territories is entitled to 2,000 arms, if deemed necessary for self-protection.

Assassin Guiteau.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Assassin Guiteau passed his fortieth birthday in jail yesterday. He called the attention of the warden and guards to the fact, and suggested that persons sometimes received presents on such occasions. No affirmative response was given him. It was, however, suggested by some that the best present would be a spider in his dumpling. Guiteau is in remarkably good health, slightly heavier than when he was committed on July 2d last, and in better spirits than a few days ago. He has by some means learned that the President has been taken to Long Branch. When he hears or sees anything indicating that the President is getting better he states that he is praying for his recovery, but when the reverse is heard he intimates that the inspiration that he had to kill the President was right, and if he, the President, dies it will be because it was so decreed by Providence. Recently he has spent much time in studying his case, and evidently from his questions he will try the insanity plea, for he is asking what will be the effect of the verdict in his case should he be declared not guilty by reason of insanity—whether on such a verdict he would be sent to the insane asylum for an indefinite period or only until the officers should pronounce him sane, or whether a verdict could not be as above, with addition of the words "at the time of the commission of the crime," and in the event of such verdict whether he would not be entitled to his freedom. Every day the lower part of the corridor on which his cell fronts is given him to exercise in, and yesterday morning for half an hour he gave the guards evidence that he was in good condition for walking. Wearing a woolen shirt and black pants, the latter rolled above his knees, displaying legs with muscles so large as to look somewhat unnatural, he rapidly strode up and down the floor. Although rather short in legs, he stepped off twenty-eight or thirty inches at a stride, and excited the wonder of some of those who had never seen him exercise.

Dead on an Island.

TORONTO, September 12.—The Evening Telegram publishes a dispatch from Rosseau dated September 7, to the effect that a week ago Wednesday a lady named Goddard, with her son aged 15, and a gentleman whose name is entered at Pratt's Hotel as Roland Worthington Runot, took up their residence at Pratt's, stating that they were from Philadelphia. Runot had been drinking heavily, and on Wednesday morning of last week he started for a row on the lake. As he did not return a search was made for him, and his dead body was found on Picnic Island. A loaded revolver and a whisky bottle lay alongside of him, also a paper containing what is supposed to be cyanide of potassium. An inquest was to have been held on Monday, but owing to the wires being interrupted by the bush fires the result of the inquest is not known.

Sitting Bull's Band.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A communication has been received at the War Department from General Terry protesting against the removal of the hostile Sioux who lately surrendered under Sitting Bull from Standing Rock to the Cheyenne Agency, on the ground that there is but one company of infantry there and no quarters for more, and it is not known yet whether the hostiles intend to remain at the agencies of their own accord or will have to be coerced by military force. The matter has been referred to the Secretary of the Interior. It is understood that Secretary Kirkwood will not insist upon the removal, but will probably decide to scatter these Indians in small bands and distribute them at different agencies, so as to weaken them by force should they become uneasy and inclined to break away.

A Strange Accident.

DECKERTOWN, N. J., Sept. 12.—A very singular accident occurred here to-day, which will probably result in the death of Mr. Josiah P. Cole, a well-known citizen. A horse belonging to George Stevens ran away near Mr. Cole's house, and, breaking loose from the wagon, ran across Mr. Cole's door yard. The front door of the house was open and the horse dashed wildly into the house, through the sitting-room and into the kitchen where it brought up against the wall. Mr. Cole was in the sitting-room when the horse rushed through, and was severely injured by the frightened animal, his head being badly cut. The shock to Mrs. Cole, who was in the same room, was such as to produce complete nervous prostration, from which she is still suffering.

The Methodist Convention.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—In to day's discussion in the Wesleyan ecumenical conference the majority of the speakers decidely favored the maintenance of the present system of itinerant preachers, Mr. Warren, an American delegate, in consequence of facts adduced relative to spiritual destitution in London, even suggesting that there should be a traveling evangelical ministry throughout the world. Dr. Peck also testified to the value of itineracy in America. There was a similar expression of opinion in favor of the system of lay preaching, J. W. White, an American delegate, especially pointing out its adaptability to the needs of the working classes.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

—Smoke Harry Green's cigars.

—Peruna will tone your whole system.

—Smokers, remember Harry Green keeps the best cigars in town. Make a note of this.

—It is universally conceded that Sechler's groceries are the purest and best in Centre county.

—After having eaten a good, hearty meal, drop into Harry Green's and try one of his favorite cigars.

—Harry Green's cigars are all the rage in Bellefonte, and strangers stopping in town should visit his emporium.

—Our readers should not fail to remember that whenever they want anything in the grocery line, Sechler's is the place to go for it.

—Dr. Chase's Receipt Book should be in every household in the country, as it is replete with practical information on every subject which may arise in the house, on the farm, in the workshop, and the office. It must meet with a ready sale. See the advertisement in another column of our paper. We predict that whoever is fortunate enough to secure an agency in this section for this wonderful book will surely make money.

—Senitary Inspector Cruikshank, of the Brooklyn Health Department, says the Tribune, learned yesterday that Terence Foley, ten years of age, was sick with smallpox in the crowded tenement house, No. 42 Hudson avenue. On inspection, finding the disease strongly marked, the inspector ordered the boy's removal to the Flatbush Smallpox Hospital. The mother resisted, and threatened the inspector if he attempted to enforce his orders. Summoning the ambulance, Mr. Cruikshank called on Police Captain Barr, of the Second Precinct, for aid, and the captain, a sergeant and the reserve force went to the house. The door was locked and barricaded, and they were compelled to break it down. The inspector and the ambulance driver carried the sick boy to the ambulance, and he was taken away amid the hisses and jeers of a large crowd of sympathizers which had gathered.

This resistance of the mother at parting with her child is nothing more nor less than what might naturally be expected, but in a great majority of cases mothers are greatly to blame for the sickness in their families. It is more startling that such cases are not more frequent, for the amount of doctored provisions consumed in America to-day, if made public, would startle the world. Bellefonte has been radically free from such scourges, and the reason can be ascribed to Sechler, the grocer, for his wisdom in catering to the public wants.

Patton Township Items.

Seeing no communication from our township for some time, and being at leisure on account of the drouth which is so great here as to almost suspend farm operations for the present, and almost the entire community is scarce of water for stock and general use. The corn and potato crops are very near failures, and some farmers will not have enough corn to fatten their hogs.

We have had a series of meetings, conducted by Rev. Palmer, colored, of your town, assisted by Revs. Charles Garner and George Skinner. They are all very good and pleasant talkers, and had good audiences, composed chiefly of white people. It continued over two Sabbaths, and it brings to my mind an old saying I have heard: "Where two or three (colored) people are gathered together in the name of the Lord, there will they take up a collection."

We had a Sunday-school picnic in G. Wesley Gray's woods, which was very natural, but the most unnatural part was for our superintendent to get the thing up, make all the arrangements, and then go, not to our picnic, but to one at Houserville. Oh, William!

We are having some substantial improvements made in farm property. Isaac Gray on his farm near Col. Green's, is building a splendid farm mansion, and David Bebress is also building a fine farm house, which, when completed, will add much to the value of his farm. Moses Thompson built a large bank barn on his Pond Bank farm and made other smaller improvements. We are holding our own with other localities. Scotia, which is in our township, adds greatly to the value of our local market, and brings a great many strangers into our little township. We expect before long to hear the whistle from the locomotive within the confines of old Patton.

There is also talk of a postoffice being established at Scotia ore mines, with J. B. Mattern as postmaster.

We had quite an event in the marriage of Rev. Jacob B. Moore and Alferetta Henderson, of Huston township. Jacob, being an household without a cook, the ladies of Buffalo Run went to his house with every conceivable good thing to eat, and Jacob and his fair bride were as natural and as happy as if they had been there before. And if any one thinks P. B. Waddle doesn't enjoy such occasions just let them invite him to one such and see. OTHELLO.

Stormstown and Vicinity.

Not seeing anything in your paper from this end of the county for some time, I thought it would be well to let the people know what was going on up here.

Our enterprising townsman, R. J. P. Gray, is putting an addition to his store room, and when done will front fifty feet. This room when completed will be one of the finest rooms in Centre county.

The ore business in this township still continues good. There is a new firm here from Philipsburg prospecting Geo. S. and A. T. Gray's farms. Just how much they are finding, is not known. Geo. S. Gray is also prospecting for coal, and it is said he has good prospects.

There is some talk of a strike at Scotia mines for higher wages. Better let well enough alone.

Our worthy townsman, J. H. Lever, is as busy as a nailer. Mr. Lever is a good blacksmith, and that accounts for it.

C. W. Hunter is turning out lots of tombstones.

Mr. H. G. Elder, with his steam thresher, is doing a good business. He had it built at Mansfield, Ohio.

H. G., have you found the owner for that satchel you found at the hardware of Wilson & McFarlane yet? ALDO.

Mill Burned.

Some time during Friday night last the large grist mill belonging to Mr. William Thompson, at Potter's mills was totally destroyed by fire. The fire occurred sometime after midnight, and is supposed to have been the work of some evil-disposed person. Nothing was left about the mill that could in any manner produce a spontaneous combustion, and it seems almost certain that the fire orignated from an incendiary's torch. The building was uninsured, Mr. Thompson's loss being something over $10,000. About four hundred bushels of wheat were consumed in the flames, together with all the machinery of the mill. The loss is a very severe one, and which Mr. Thompson is scarcely able to stand. Mr. Thompson has been very unfortunate of late, having recently had his store building at that place destroyed in the same manner.

—Sechler's groceries are severely free from all mixtures or drugs, and their effects on the system are far better than all the medicines ever known. Try them and be convinced.

The drouth is effecting our community very much. Leaves are falling and some trees actually dying. The spring which supplies our village with water is entirely dry, which, we believe, was never known to fail before. The creek has been turned into the pipes, so that we have plenty of water, and great reason to be thankful that there is no suffering here, as is felt in many quarters, though our supply comes from an exposed stream.

What has become of our County Sunday-School Convention, is a question repeatedly asked by our Sunday-school workers. Can some one give us light? We trust the Christian people of Centre county are not losing interest in this most important work.

Tuesday, the 6th, witnessed a grand wedding in our village. The parties united were those of our joival friends, Charles Smith and Miss Viola M. Hess, the only daughter and child of J. G. Hess. The number of guests who had come together to witness the joyous occasion, together with the many valuable presents with which they greeted the happy young bride, shows her esteem in a large circle of highly respected friends. May their journey through life be of a most joyous character. And when we utter these words, we know they are seconded by a host of others.

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiguing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into their manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundels through the following tests:—I placed an eight-inch Arundel, and an eight-inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperture in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitised photographic paper, and the white glass discolored the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

* * * "I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

Removal of the President to Long Branch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6, 6 30 a. m. The Presidential train left at 6.30 this morning for Long Branch. The President bore the transfer well, with only some acceleration of pulse from the excitement.

GRAYS FERRY, Sept. 6, 10.45 a. m. The President continues to do well. A brief stop was made at Bay View, and the wound successfully dressed. Speed increased to fifty miles an hour. No discomfort was felt by the President. When he was informed that one-half of the journey had been completed he seemed greatly pleased, and said this was decidedly the most interesting day of any since he was shot. Train left Holmesburg at 11.40.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The train bearing the President passed Bowie, seventeen miles this side of Washington, at 7:10, Philadelphia time.

The following dispatches were thrown off:

"The President is so far doing so well that the surgeons would like to increase the speed where it can be safely and comfortably done."

"To Eliza Garfield, Garrettsville Ohio: All goes well up to this hour (8:15), and the President is standing the journey splendidly."

AT BALTIMORE AND BEYOND.

The train with the president passed the Union depot, Baltimore, at 7:48 a. m. The President stood the fatigues of travel with remarkable fortitude. His pulse was 106, less frequent than it was before leaving Washington. The arrangements were so complete in every detail that inconvenience to the Presidentwere almost to a minimum. The bed upon which he lay was so carefully adjusted that the vibration was scarcely noticeable. The train ran from Washington to Baltimore at an average speed of thirty miles per hour. It was found this rate of speed caused less annoyance than if reduced one-half. At seven o'clock the President took three ounces of beef tea with relish.

At the depot perfect quiet prevailed in the building, the track in the vicinity having been cleared of all engines and cars. Passing trains had been held back, and the tunnel from one end to the other was entirely clear and free from smoke. The train bearing the President passed at a slow rate of speed on the track outside the depot, making no stop. Few persons were about.

The President's train passed Perryman's, 26 miles east of Baltimore, at 8:29.

Dr. Boyton telegraphed Dr. Baxter, at Washington, "Pulse on leaveing 114, now 106. He slept and is doing splendidly."

Private Secretary Brown telegraphed Wayne MacVeigh, at Long Branch, "All goes well up to this hour. At this rate of speed we will reach Elberon between one and two o'clock. Pulse 106."

SIXTY MILES AN HOUR.

The Presidential party reached Wilmington, Delaware, at 10 a. m., moving about ten miles an hour. About 1,500 people assembled at the depot. It was reported that the President was in good condition, the only change since leaving Washington being a slight acceleration of the pulse. The train ran from Wilmington to Lamokin, Pa., fourteen miles, in fourteen minutes, then stoped for coal. Ten men were engaged in getting coal in quickly. She was seven minutes coaling, and left at 10:21.

CHESTER REACHED.

The President's train passed the depot at Chester at about twenty-five miles an hour. The President's car was apparently tightly closed and no bulletin was thrown off. While the locomotive was receiving coal at Lamokin, Dr. Agnew said the President had improved since he left Washington and was getting along very comfortably. They were glad to get out of Washington, for the heat was oppressive. The doctors on the train were pleased with the progress the train was making. The car was quite free from any jolt or jar, and they had high hopes of reaching Long Branch with no bad results. The President had suffered very little fatigue.

ANOTHER SHORT STOP.

Gray's Ferry was passed and a brief stop made at Bay View, when the President's wound was successfully dressed. Starting again the speed of the train was increased to fifty miles per hour, and no discomfort was felt by the President.

AT PHILADELPHIA.

The train reached West Philadelphia at 10:32, and Molmesburg Junction at 11:14. When the President was informed that more than half the journey had been completed he was greatly pleased, and said that this was decidedly the most interesting day of any since he was shot.

At Philadelphia Dr. Boyton said that the removal of the President promises to be a grand success. He is confident that the patient will be in a better condition when he reaches Elberon than when he started. His pulse on leaving Washington was 114, and at Philadelphia 106.

THROUH JERSEY TO THE SEA.

The train passed Trenton at 12:07 p. m.,and Freehold at 12:28, running a mile a minute. Long Branch was reached at 1:10, and at 1:20 the President was in his room in the cottage. Pulse 102.

There were about twenty thousand persons in the vicinity of the Presidential quarters, and every one expresses a feeling of gratification that he stood the trip so well.

THE PRESIDENT LIKED THE RIDE.

General Superintendent Kenney, of the Philadelphia,Wilmington and Baltimore Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was on the President's train. He says it is true the President's pulse fell ten beats before reaching Baltimore. The President seemed cheerful, and when asked if he would like to travel faster, he replied yes,he rather liked it. Kenney says he seemed to be in very good spirits, and was not under the effects of any opiates. He was as rational as could be and occasionally chatted with the doctors. Kenney added he was surprised to see the number of people who turned out, particularly in country places, to witness the passage of the train. Even at prominent stations, where there were crowds, the people raised their hats with reverence and all seemed affected by the gravity of the situation.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 7 A. M. The President slept quietly the greater part of the night, awakening to take nourishment. This morning his symptoms are normal, and he appears to have recovered the effects of his journey. Pulse 106, temperature 98, respiration 18. The next bulletin will be issued as 6 o'clock.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 7, 8. p. m. Notwithstanding the thermometer marked 94° in the President's bedroom, there was a breeze and he was comparitively comfortable. He has taken his nourishment at intervals during the day. At noon his pulse was 114, temp. 98, resp. 18. Since then there has been some rise of temperature, though less than yesterday. At the evening dressing the wound looked well. At present his pulse is 108, temp. 101, resp. 18.

The President Better.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 8.—To-day was one of the warmest ever experienced at Long Branch. The thermometer ranged between 90 and 100, and the little land breeze from the southwest was scarcely bearable. Every one suffered extremely and remained as quiet as possible in shady places. In the immediate vicinity of the President's cottage everything was very quiet. With a view of preserving perfect quiet all persons are prevented going beyond a given point, some distance form the cottage. The attendants and others with the Presidential party, excepting Mrs. Garfield, Miss Mollie and Mrs. and Miss Rockwell, take their meals at the Elberon Hotel.

General Swaim said this afternoon "the President is getting on finely and is undoubtedly better now than this morning. The gland was dressed at noon and is growing better all the time. I think this air will benefit the President after we get the sea breeze. The President himself says he notices the air is pure and he enjoys the ocean scene very much. The President's rallying so soon from the fatigue of yesterday's trip is a very favorable indication. It shows there is considerable of Garfield left there yet. The expected good result from the change will begin to develop, I should judge, in a day or two, and I have no doubt but that the next two days will show a marked gain."

Mrs. Garfield is rested and feels quite well again.

Dr. Boynton says he thinks the President is doing admirably. The reporter asked, "Has the President made any remarks that would indicate he feels any benefit from the change of air?"

Dr. Boynton answered, "Yes, he did so to-day. Warren Young, of Private Secretary Brown's office, came into the room with some mail matter. Seeing him the President held out his hand with the remark, 'Warren, don't you think I look better to-day?' Mr Young responded in the affirmative, and the President then added with emphasis, "and I feel better. This is a good air."

"How long should it be, Doctor, before the patient should commence to gain some strength, providing the sea air agrees with him?"

"From forty-five to sixty hours."

Dr. Boynton remarked as he was leaving the reporter, "we will have good news for you in a day or so, I think."

Colonel Corbin considers the President somewhat stronger.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 8, 8.30 a. m. The President was restless and wakeful up to midnight, after which he slept well until morning. Pulse 104, temperature 98, respiration 18. His general condition appears more encouraging.

ELBERON, Sept. 8, 6.30 p. m.—The President's pulse at noon was 94, temperature 99, respiration 18. At 5.30 p. m. pulse 100, temperature 99, respiration 18. He has taken a liberal amount of food with apparent relish. He formally thanked the retiring physicians.

Baltimore's Grain Blockade.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 7.—The Corn and Flour Exchange Committee of Conference to-day reported that they had been unable to effect any agreement with the Pennsylvania Railroad officials about the grain blockade, all their propositions having been rejected by the latter. The greatest excitement prevails in consequence, and the market was further demoralized by the information that a notice of an advance of storage rates after five days will be posted to-morrow. The grain men are organizing,have engaged counsel and will contest the legality of the notice in the courts. They claim that it is necessary to give notice of advance for each elevator receipt, which they consider distinct and separate contracts. The rate of storage under the advance will be three cents per bushel, which will have the effect of driving the grain out with a rush. In consequence of the anticipated demand for vessels freights have advanced considerably so it is evident that the trade will suffer seriously on all sides.

Cameron Holding Aloof.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 7.—There are very few indications that there will be much of a contest in the Republican State Convention here on Thursday for the Treasury nomination. Senator Cameron says either Bailey or Davies will make a good nominee, and that he does not propose to take any hand in the fight. From the present outlook it will be a very tame affair. The trouble that presents itself uppermost is how to raise the funds to run the campaign. Quay is urged to accept the Chairmanship of the State Central Committee, but he has had enough of that, so he says. He will not accept unless there should be a tender from all factions, with an assurance that the money will be forthcoming. Resolutions of sympathy with President Garfield will be presented and passed and then be engrossed and forwarded to him.

Governor Hoyt is very much interested in the President's condition and thinks that daily prayer meeting in all the cities and towns should be held until his recevery is assured beyond doubt.

The New York Democrats.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The Democratic State Committee have issued a call for a State convention at Albany, October 11th. The meeting was a full one. The following were adopted by a rising vote:

Resolved, That the people's right to be represented in the executive office of the United States by a Chief Magistrate of their own choice has now again been imperilled. This right of the people in a representative Republic is a fundamental principle of self government. Whether this right be imperilled, as in 1876, by conspiracy of force and fraud among the office holders of the party in power aiming to nullify the people's verdict, or as now by the bullet of an assassin, whatever his motive, that peril should awaken in every patriotic heart not only the respectful sympathy of freeman with the victim of such atrocity, but also that political vigilance which is the cost of maintaining the safeguard of liberty.

Resolved, That the members of the Democratic State Committee, at the first meeting since the attack upon the president of the United States, take occasion to record their indignation and horror at the infamous deed, and to express their heartfelt sympathy with the distinguished sufferer and his stricken family in their affliction, with the earnest hope that the labors of love and science for the restoration of the Chief Magistrate to health and the full exercise of the constitutional functions of his office may be soon crowned with success.

San Francisco City Election.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—The city election took place to-day, the campaign being brisk and abusive. The main issue was the rate of taxation. The Republican ticket was on the whole composed of better material, while the Democratic platform and the pledges imposed on the candidates were more expedient on the points above mentioned. The election has been very quiet, and a light vote was polled, estimated not to exceed 30,000. A great deal of scratching was done and the result will not be obtained before to-morrow evening. The Democrats are very confident to-night, claiming the election of their entire ticket. In sporting circles even bets are offered that the Democratic ticket, with the exception of coroner, is elected. The Republicans profess confidence of the success of their candidates for mayor, sheriff and auditor, on which offices the sharpest fight has been made.

Irish Riots at Limerick.

LIMERICK, September 5.—There have been riots during the morning. The soldiers who marched up George street were stoned. They then charged the mob, dispersing it in all directions. During the riots yesterday there was no resident magistrate with the police and the riot act was not read. The opinion is freely expressed that the police might have kept the mob back without firing. Subsequent to the George street affray this morning the people armed themselves and attempted to decoy the police from the barracks by means of a false report that several persons had been killed. The stratagem failed, or doubtless there would have been serious bloodshed. A larely increased force of constabulary will be sent to Limerick.

The Irrepressible Nihilists.

LONDON, September 6.—Advices have been received from St. Petersburg stating that two fresh numbers of the Nihilist journal, Will of the People, dated August 3d and 14th, have appeared in the form of supplements, promising the publication of a full number at the beginning of September. The numbers issued contain various notices warning spies of their fate, showing of donations to the revolutionary fund, amounting to 5,000 roubles, list of 400 Nihilists arrested since November, and an article condemning the Czar's policy and threatening to deal the enemy a final blow. Accounts from the interior of Russia show that the anti-Jewish disorders are not the work of the Socialists.

Gambetta Fires the French Heart.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A Paris correspondent says: "A passage in Gambetta's speech at Neubourg last night, in which he declared that Sedan would have been wiped out if France had more steadfast hearts and if virtue, patriotism, independence and disdain for material enjoyment had more largely prevailed, was loudly cheered." In the course of his speech he said he did not think it well to reopen the question of the electoral reform immediately on the meeting of the new chamber; that it should not be abandoned, but only postponed, a fresh appeal to the country being inadvisable.

The Afghan Conflict.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A dispatch from Quetta says: On August 31, Ayoob Khan issued a proclamation declaring that he had abandoned his intention of fighting the Ameer and was about to fight the English. To this end he invited all persons having weapons belonging to the Government to consider them their own on condition of their joining his standard immediately. It may be assumed this is merely a clumsy plan to get as many rifles as possible and send them to Herat, where he continues to send as much cash as he can get.

U. S. Minister to Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 8.—General Lew Wallace in presenting his credentials yesterday as United States Minister to this court said the relations between Turkey and the United States had been amicable from thier commencement, and he would endeavor by all means in his power to make them if possible more intimate. The Sultan formally reciprocated the friendly assurance. He afterwards conversed with General Wallace and inquired with solicitude concerning President Garfield. He asked that his assurances of sympathy be communicated to the President.

Enforcing Neutrality.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—The North German Gazette says: Judicial investigation confirms the supposition that the vessels Diogenes and Socrates, built at Kiel, where they were seized more than a month ago, were intended for warlike purposes. The facts ascertained in regard to their construction, and the obstinate secrecy of the builders relative to the person who ordered them, show that the Government must strictly fulfill the obligations imposed by its neutrality.

The Afghan War Cloud.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The Ameer of Afghanistan answered Ayoob Khan's proposals and the latter consequently sent an important Sirdar and several priests to the Ameer's camp. It is reported Ayoob Khan intends to stand a siege. The force with the Ameer at Kelat consists of five cavalry regiments, twelve cannons, several regiments of infantry and a large body of militia. Ayoob Kahn holds the road half way to Kelat.

Gambetta for Free Trade.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—Gambetta speaking at a banquet at Honfleur said: "My convictions have not changed. You are strong and ingenious enough to sustain competition with other nations." In conclusion he expressed the wish that treaties consecrating free trade might be speedily concluded. The speech was received with loud and prolonged cheering.

Snow Storm in the Black Hills.

DEADWOOD, D. T., Sept. 8.—There was a heavy snow storm in the Black Hills Monday night. On Tuesday morning the snow was five inches deep on a level here three inches at Custer City. At Bald Mountain it was two feet deep.

The Harrisburg Convention.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 8.—The Republican Convention met to-day and finished its work harmoniously. General S. M. Bailey was nominated for Treasurer on first ballot, the vote standing—Bailey 157, Davis 83. Bailey's maj. 74.

How the James Boys Work.

A Western paper says: "Jesse and Frank go into a farming community and become acquainted with the men and pick out certain ones, after a careful study of their character, to join with them in a particular robbery. They carefully broach the subject to them, and if they are willing they agree to give them all the way from $100 to $500 each. They are required to hold the horses and fire off guns and raise a racket while Jesse and Frank, with perhaps one or two experienced trusties, do the robbing.

"Immediately after the completion of the job, the farmers are paid the stipulated sum, whether the haul is large or small, and then they ride to their homes, while the James boys strike out to a place of safety. The men who have been inveigled into the job are never asked to go into a similar undertaking a second time,but they ever afterward remain under the power and fear of the noted robber chieftains,upon whom they dare not squeal, for by so doing they would give themselves away.

"They always stand ready to protect and secrete the James boys when they are hard pressed. This explains why the James boys have so many friends in Missouri, and why it is so difficult to catch them. It is as hard to find them in Missouri as it would be to find a needle in a haystack."

Cannot a lady be so well dressed as to be ill dressed? When one is so extravagantly and richly attired that every passer-by, male and female, is irresistibly impelled to turn about and look at her clothes, the seeming paradox above presented seems to be supported. The Boston Journal thinks the perfection of good dressing would seem to be reached when one cannot tell five minutes after carefully noticing a passing lady what she had on.

SKILL IN WORKMANSHIP.—To do good work, the mechanic must have good health. If long hours of confinement in close rooms have enfeebled his hand or dimmed his sight, let him at once, and before some organic trouble appears, take plenty of Hop Bitters. His system will be rejuvenated, his nerves strengthened, his sight become clear, and his whole constitution be built up to a better working condition.

What Cyrus W. Field saw in Asia.

"There is no unusual discomfort about railway travel in India. Railway management there is of a high order, and as to expense of operating exceeds anything to be found in the United States. But about thirty three per cent. of receipts of Indian railways are required to meet the expense of operation. What one of our railways can report as favorable as that?

"The Japanese are one of the cleanliest people on earth, personally. But so much cannot be said of them morally. It is the custom of the whole nation to bathe daily, but it may shock you to know that until recently men and women bathed together perfectly naked. The government has established a law against promiscuous bathing, and the houses are now made with a partition to separate the men and the women, but it is not very high.

"The most refined Japanese are extremely courteous and agreeable people. We were invited to visit a Japanese merchant, with whom I was much pleased. Our reception was as curious as it was cordial. We had to remove our shoes at the door, and enter and make our visit in our stocking feet. Our host introduced us to three of his wives. I do not know how many more he had. It will give you some idea of the elegance of our entertainment if I tell you the tea we drank was made before us in a golden teakettle.

"The hills, mountains, and volcanoes of Japan are exceedingly beautiful. The groves which occupy so much space in Japanese cities are very attractive. The inland sea upon which we crossed to Nagasaki is as beautiful as any water I ever sailed upon.

Shanghai and Hong Kong are not filthy, and Saigon, in Cochin China, is cleaner than New York has been in many years. But the people do not bathe as frequently as in Japan and the people are not as clean. The Celestials are sinewy and have great endurance, but they would doubtless look less sallow and their physical condition would improve if they were not restricted to such a monotonous diet. Rice is wholesome food, but they live almost exclusively upon rice, and the poorer class have hardly enough of that.

"The dwellings of the natives are poor everywhere in Asia. The only fine private buildings are the houses of foreign residents. The pagodas of the great cities of China are conspicuous above the hut like houses of the people, but they are much inferior to the mosques and temples of India, As we sailed from the ports of China the pagodas were the last objects of sight, and as we approached Singapore, the southernmost point of Asia, and passed the straits of Malacca to Penang, the temples of heathen deities were the first objects to attract our attention. So it was at every Asiatic port we entered. As we sailed up the Bay of Bengal to Rangoon, the capital of British Burmah, twenty five miles within the mouth of the Irrawaddy, the greatest pagoda in the world raised its great golden dome imposingly before us.

Prohibition Does Prohibit.

Litigation, and not temperance has been the chief product of the Kansas prohibitory legislation.

The above from the Rochester Democrat is but one of repeated instances of its one-sided copying of pro-whiskey statements. Read some things it has never printed.

"With the exception of Leavenworth, Atchison, Topeka, and Dodge City, the law as a rule, is being as faithfully, honestly, and effectually enforced and obeyed as are any other of the criminal laws upon the statute book."—J. P. St. John, Gov. of Kansas.

The saloon men of Parsons, Kansas, undertook to defy the prohibition law, and publicly opened their saloons a week ago. Prosecutions were immediately instituted and one plead guilty, one convicted, and one ran away, four more were arrested and brought into court. Seeing that both people and officers of the law were determined, the saloon men surrendered unconditionally, by all agreeing to plead guilty and close up their saloons.—Mid-Continent.

The prohibition amendment, we are told, is a failure and the liquor law is worse; and yet to account for the following fact, which is admitted by all who attended our celebration on the 4th, on the above theory is exceedingly difficult. We had an attendance at Osborne City on the 4th, of at least 2,500 persons, and yet among all the crowd during all that day and night, (the fireworks held most of the crowd until 11 o'clock at night,) not a single person was under the influence of liquor. Our sheriff, who was also marshal of the day, says he did not catch even the smell of whiskey on a single person, and he was much of the time moving among the crowd. There was not a single quarrel, not even loud or profane talking. Now this is a fact, and it was never so before.

We say here that both the prohibition amendment and the liquor law are a success, even beyond the most sanguine expectations of the most sanguine friends of the cause. —Cor. of Topeka Capital.

Science and Industry.

The Scientific American says that by far the largest masonry arch in this country and in the world is that which carries the Washington Aqueduct over Cabin John Creek. It has a span of 220 feet; it is 101 feet high, and twenty feet wide, and and it forms an arch of a circle having a radius of 1,342,852 feet. The engineer in charge of the aqueduct was Gen. M. C. Meigs. The work was begun in 1853 and finished in 1863.

Prof. Ennis, of the Naval Observatory at Washington, believes that the tails of comets are electric lights. "If these tails had any substance," he argues, "the laws of motion are constantly violated by them. The great comet of 1843 went so near the sun that it passed from one side to the other in a few hours. Its immense tail, 100,000,000 miles long, was shifted completely, so that it pointed directly in an opposite direction. Could that be so if it were composed of any substance? Could a comet swing 100,000,000 of a tail around so quick as that? The electricity is generated by evaporation. As the comets approach the sun, the heat becomes more intense, the evaporation and accumulation of electricity more rapid, the repulsive force greater, and the tails longer. Sometimes the material becomes completely evaporated. Then the comet has no tail."

Are Rich Men Happy?

On one of the last days of his earthly existence Mr. Hopkins, the late Baltimore millionaire, called his devoted gardner to him and said: "I am beginning to hate this place, because it does not bring in money. I hate everything that does not bring in money. Did you ever feed hogs? Have you not observed that the strong animals bear away the ears of corn, and that the weaker ones pursue them squealingly, in hopes that all or some of the treasure will be lost or dropped?" The gardner replied that the sketch was a true one. "Well, then," said Mr. Hopkins, "I am that strong hog. I have that big ear of corn, and every piggish rascal in Baltimore is intent upon stealing it or wresting it from me. Sir,', he said, turning brusquely to the gardner, "do you think a very rich man is happy?" The gardner answered: "The extreme of poverty is a sad thing. The extreme of wealth, no doubt, bears with it many tribulations." Mr. Hopkins rejoined: "You are right, my friend; next to the hell of being utterly bereft of money is the purgatory of possessing a vast amount of it. I have a mission, and under its shadow I have accumulated wealth, but not happiness."

Chinese Not to Shave Their Heads for One Hundred Days.

The Chinese government, for some reason not stated, recently issued a decree commanding its subjects to abstain from shaving the head for a period of one hundred days. Detected in the act of disobeying this arbitrary regulation, between fifty and sixty persons in the city of Foochow alone were on the 14th of June sentencec to receive castigation with bamboo rods and to pay each a fine of 3,000 cash (about $6). It is stated by the local journals that before liberation the heads of the offenders were, as wholesome warning to others, carerefully painted and varnished.

JENNIE CRAMER'S FATE.

The Coroner's Jury Say Her Death Was Caused by James Malley.

The Cramer jury of inquest came to a verdict to-night after an all-day session, incriminating James Malley, Jr., and holding Walter Malley and the Douglass woman morally responsible. During the forenoon, while testimony was taken, the Malleys were present, and looked pale and worn, though each sported a buttonhole bouquet. Both refused to say anything in alteration or correction of the testimony they gave three days after Jennie's body was found, acting under advice. The testimony was only of cumulative value and in corroboration of previous witnesses.

Mrs. Klippstein, a barber's wife, and Mrs. Crowfut, a milliner, testified to seeing Blanche Douglass and Jennie Cramer in company at the Elliott House on the evenings of Wednesday and Thursday, August 3 and 4, and to seeing Walter with them. Both witnesses also saw Walter Malley and Blanche Douglass go to take the ride which Walter Malley claims as an alibi. Mrs. Klippstein thought there was another man at the carriage when Walter drove off, but did not identify him as James Malley, Jr. Mrs. Crowfut was called on to identify Walter and pointed him out in the crowd. He, however, manifested little annoyance. A waiter in Diebel's restaurant partially contradicted the State's claim that Walter Malley and the two women were at Redcliffe's Thursday night, August 4, by placing Walter Malley, another man and Blanche Douglass at Diebel's at about the time others have testified to the Redcliffe supper. The waiter said that he did not know the man with Walter Malley. The party stayed four or five minutes only and went out without waiting for their order. He was alone at this time. About a week after Jennie's body was found an unknown man came to his place and wanted him to recollect that the party was there; that there were two men and one woman, and told him that these were the Malley boys and Blanche Douglass. The witness said that he did not know that it was a Malley detective who had asked him to recall the circumstances. A clerk in Malley's Joshua W. Brunt, proved his whereabouts the night of August 5 to show that he was not the black-moustached man so often mentioned.

Inferentially whether the Malleys had arsenic handy came up. The question was whether there were rats in the Malley store. The witness said that there were, but he did not know what means were taken to exterminate them. Patrick Lynch, a grocer's clerk, testified to seeing Jennie Cramer in a carriage with a man the fatal Friday afternoon, going in the West Haven direction, but he did not notice the man particularly. He only thought the man James Malley, Jr. David Evans thought that he saw Walter Malley at West Haven Friday night, but was uncertain about it. The most positive witness was John J. Houser, a driver. He testified: "I do not know Jennie Cramer by sight. I saw James Malley on the Friday before Jennie's body was found. It was 12 30 o'clock. I have known James Malley about a year. He was with a lady. I was within twenty feet of them. They were on the sidewalk and I was in the middle of the street."

"Can you point James out?

"Oh, yes."

"Do so."

"There he is there"—pointing at James Malley, Jr. When the witness was asked to describe the hat he did so, and James held up his hat obligingly. The witness then continued:

"The lady he was with was about his size. She was very white in the face. I made the remark to cousin that she was very white. I know it was Friday because I was in a hurry to get back so as to come down on the shore as I do every Friday.

This was a direct contradiction of James Malley's alibi as that furnished last week by Henry C. Allen, whose deposition was to-day read, James listening and watching the Coroner intently. All that was left for the jury was the statement of Dr. Prudden, who made the autopsy, and Prof. Crittenden's report. Dr. Prudden reported that there were no marks of violence over the general surface of the body. There were numerous small abrasions over the face and two irregular wounds on the lower lip, all of them probably made after or about the time of death. There were considerable congestion of the membranes of the brain. The brain was otherwise normal. The lungs were healthy, contained no water and were filled with air. The heart was healthy and contained but little blood. There was a small quantity of reddish fluid in both pleural cavities. The stomach was healthy and contained a small quantity of partially digested food, huckleberries, lean and fat meat and mushrooms. The intestines were healthy. The kidneys and spleen were healthy. There was at the time of autopsy no marks of violence concerning which definite conclusions could be drawn, owing to the advanced stage of decomposition in these parts. The blood was dark colored and but little clotted. The post-mortem examination did not reveal the cause or manner of death. The appearance of the food in the stomach would indicate that it had been taken within eight hours of time of death.

Professor Crittenden reported that he had found arsenic distributed as follows in the remains: Stomach and œsophagus, 158 thousandths grains; liver, 109 thousandths grains; kidney, 29 thousandths grains; lungs, 1146 ten thousandths grains; intestines, 314 thousandths grains; total 7776 ten thousandths grains. From these results the professor concluded that arsenic is contained in all parts of the body and in such quantity as in ordinary circumstances would indicate a fatal dose. The jury in secret session framed three separate verdicts before rendering the verdict which they submitted, and in which they say that, being duly impaneled and sworn to inquire of the cause and manner of the death of Jennie E. Cramer, late of New Haven, whose death was sudden and untimely and the cause and manner of which were unknown, having viewed the body of said deceased and considered the evidence given, do on their oaths say that said Jennie E. Cramer came to her death by poison and violence, and that James Malley Jr., of New Haven, Conecticut, is criminally responsible for her death. They also find that Walter E. Malley, of New Haven, Connecticut, and Blanche Douglass, of New York city, are morally responsible for the same. The jurors say that the location of the mass of arsenic shows that much more could have been eliminated and that the dose must have been administered soon before death.

Saved from an Uncle's Dagger by a Corset.

Our citicens were shocked to hear yesterday morning that Dr. Asa Wall, in a fit of intoxication, made a murderous attack with a knife upon his niece, Miss Mary, the daughter of Dr. Thomas Hall, who lives with her grandfather, John F. Wall, Esq. The young lady was cut quite severely on the arm and in the breast, and it is said her corset alone prevented the wound from being a fatal one. Miss Wall's brother intefered in her behalf, and her assailant came to town and gave himself up to the officers, and is now in jail. Dr. Love was called in, and her father who is practicing at Capon bridge, is also with her. Her injuries are serious, but not necessarily fatal.

A Burning Corn-Field.

Very few people have perhaps, ever heard of a crop of growing corn catching fire and burning until the fire was extinguished, but a case of this kind certainly occurred a few miles above Tupelo, Miss., in the early part of this week. A fence inclosing a corn-field took fire in some way from a construction train on the railroad, and the corn itself was soon in a blaze, and more than an acre of it was literally burned up before the railroad men could put out the fire. This is strange, but nevertheless, an actual occurrence.

"Can pa make a circus, ma?" "I don't know, Johnny; I suppose he could if he had a great deal of money to buy horses and wild animals; but whydo you ask, Johnny?" "Oh, nothing much, only I saw that Gaston fellow, that you told sis not to have anything to do with, standing with his arm around her at the back gate last night, and he said to Sis: 's'pose if yer old man came around now he would make a circus.' and Sis laughed and said, 'You bet.'"

There are 45,000 persons engaged in the manufacture of pottery in England and Wales. The death rate among the males is 38 per cent. higher than among the male element at large. In the lungs of a potter who recently died of consumption were found 48 per cent. of silica, 18 of alumina, and 5 of oxide of iron—articles of constant use in his business.

Oil City Derrick: Mrs. Jones went to a picnic the other day, one of those quiet picnics with no fuss, where you get up at 4 o'clock in the morning, pack off four children and ten lunch baskets and gad around in the heat all day—and it made Mrs. Jones so tired that she had to do two days' washing before she felt rested.

Before Mrs. Patton died, at Evansville, Ind., she induced her husband and her daughter by a previous union to promise to marry, and the arrangement is to be carried out.

There was once a Sir James Weir Hogg who made a fortune in India, and whose wife, holding a distinguished place in London fashionable circles, gave splendid parties. It is said that a young blood, meeting one of the Misses Hogg at a ball, and, not knowing her name, asked her if she was going to a certain party at the "piggery." Her naive reply was: "Oh, I am one of the litter!"

A Broadway dealer in curiosites, says the most singular article of a lady's toilet he ever saw was a fan. Is was of fine yellow lace, and had richly carved wooden sticks, each stick inlaid with a crescent of clear shell-like substance. It was made by a lady of Normandy. The lace was woven from her own golden hair, and the tiny crescents, so highly polished, were the tips of her finger nails.

Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, indigestion, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night, after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Internal, External and Itching Piles yield at once on the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain upon the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price, 50 cents. Ask your druggist for it, and when you cannot obtain it of him, we will send it, prepaid, on receipt of price. Address, The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by F. Potts Green. 21-17t

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom. It restores gray hair to its original color. It makes the scalp white and clean. It cures dandruff and humors, and falling-out of the hair. It furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft, glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only an occasional application necessary. It is recommended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The popularity of Hall's Hair Renewer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—Yesterday was desidedly the most pleasant day we have experienced for several weeks.

—A large crowd from Bellefonte took part in the Veteran reunion at Spring Mills on Saturday.

—Sunday's rain storm extinguished most of the mountain fires, and the people once more are resting easier.

—A "Cheapside" girl calls her beau "Caesar," because every time she looks cross-eyed at any other fellow he sees her.

—The streets Saturday evening wore their usual lively appearance, but the number of Saturday night drunks was small.

—A rumor is in circulation to the effect that the car works are shortly to change hands, but an interview with several officials failed to throw any light on the subject.

—Messrs. Valentine & Co. have erected quite an extensive coal-bin near their works, holding several hundred tons, where they expect to store their winters supply.

—Mr. Robert Nelson is the new superintendent of the Philadelphia and Erie railroad, vice Wm. Baldwin, promoted to the management of several of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh.

—Mr. James McClure is building a new dwelling house on his lot on east Bishop street. It will be of frame, and should he feels so inclined when the building is completed will move his family thither.

—Mr. Miles Mattern exhibits a whiteish substance at this office somewhat resembling chalk, some of which is being shipped away and manufactured into some kind of ware. It is found in great abundance on Mr. Mattern's farm.

—A telephonic despatch from Snow Shoe to this paper on Saturday stated that the mountain fires in that locality were still raging fiercely, and that unless extinguished speedily by rain the worst fears would probably be realized.

—A man named Wortz, from somewhere up the valley, while sleeping in the depot Friday, had several bundles of clothing stolen from him. This is pretty bold business, and if the parties should be captured, they ought to be delt with severely.

—The venerable John Cromrine, of Pine Grove, well known through Centre county, is lying dangerously ill at the residence of his son-in-law, John Snyder, at that place. He is sick unto death, and his friends seem to have given up all hope of his recovery.

—Mr. James A. Quigley, one of Eagleville's wide-awake merchants, is engaged at present in erecting a large, handsome building for mercantle purposes. This industrious little village has a number of excellent business men, who are building the town up wonderfully.

—Business at the telephone exchange is booming just now, and an average of one thousand "changes" are made daily by the man who "runs the machine." These figures may seem great, but if you were to hear the number of "hallocs" they get off in twenty-four hours' time you would swear that it is even underestimated.

—Mr. Patrick McGowan, who fell from his wagon while driving through Milesburg some weeks ago, a notice of which appeared in these columns at the time, died at his home in Snow Shoe, on Friday last, from the effects of the injuries received. Mr. McGowan was rather an aged man, and had a number of friends and relatives residing in Bellefonte.

—The colored bush meeting, under the auspices of the A. M. E. church, held in Valentines' grove, near the toll gate, closed on Sunday night last. The series of meetings continued for about ten days, and large attendances were generally present each evening and on Sunday afternoons and evenings. The reverend gentlemen who conducted the meetings seem satisfied with the result, and altogether pronounce it a decided religious success.

—Constable Jackson Gordon, of Philipsburg, brought to town Saturday a young man who had been arrested for assault and battery with intent to kill, and owing to his inability to furnish bail in the sum of $800 was placed in the county prison for safe keeping. The prisoner at one time resided in Bellefonte, where he is known as a quite, inoffensive fellow, and the general impression seems to prevail that the party whom he assaulted richly merited the rough treatment they received.

Nominations by the County Convention.

The Centre county Republican Convention assembled in the Court House yesterday afternoon. There was a large representation, and great interest was manifested, the proceedings of the Convention being decidedly spirited and interesting. We can only give a list of the nominations in this issue, being obliged to defer the publication of a complete report until next week:

Associate Judges—David Kimport, Penn; Samuel T. Gray, Patton.

Sheriff—Andrew Gregg, Potter.

Prothonotary—Julian Fleming, College.

Treasurer—Philip Gephart, Walker.

Commissioners—John I. Rankin, Bellefonte, Henry C. Campbell, Ferguson.

Register—Harry Williams, Phillipsburg.

Recorder—Edward L. Gray, Bellefonte.

Auditors—Charles Hughes, Bellefonte; Claude Cook, Snow Shoe.

Chairman County Committee—D. H. Hastings, Bellefonte.

Fire at Philipsburg.

A fire occurred at Philipsburg on Friday night last which for a time looked as though it would consume a greater part of the town. The people were badly scared, and labored faithfully and untiringly to get control of the devouring flames. The fire originated among a couple large barns belonging to Mrs. H. Foster and E. C. Bender, Esq., and before the fire department was able to do much service had gained such headway that both barns were entirely consumed, together with about thirty tons of hay which was stored in them. The fire is said to have been the work of an incendiary, whose disposition for evil must be startlingly great, for had the circumstances been less favorable a great portion of the town would have had to yield to his hellish desire.

In attempting to tear down an adjoining building to prevent the spread of the flames, Jackson Gordon and Edward McCormick were severely injured by falling timber. A number of others were also slightly injured in the same manner, but the work was finely accomplished and the flames conquered, but not until the two barns were burned to the ground and considerable other property adjoining badly scorched.

The Killing of Wesley Parks.

Wesley Parks, formerly of Bellefonte, where he was employed by the firm of Valentines & Co., was killed on Thursday of last week on the line of the P. & E. railroad, a short distance west of St. Marys. Mr. Parks was employed in the capacity of fireman on a freight train, and while crossing a bridge the structure gave way precipitating the engine and twenty-five cars a distance of forty feet, killing the engineer, a man named Knepperly, fireman Parks and two tramps. The train took fire, and the men were burned almost to a crisp. Mr. Parks was twenty two years of age, and leaves a young widow to mourn his early death. He has several brothers living in Bellefonte, among whom is William Parks, a respectable young man living on South Water street. His father and mother reside at Pennsylvania Furnace, and are aged and respected people. His remains were brought to Bellefonte yesterday and interred in the Union cemetery.

—The Lewistown Gazette says that Dr. W. T. English and wife, G. W. English and wife, and Harry English, all of Pittsburg, accompanied by Mrs. Millie King, of Beaver Falls, Pa., Mrs. Morris Furey of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Crawford of Homewood, near Pittsburg, composed a pleasant party who are making a tour through our State in conveyances. They arrived in town on Thursday afternoon last as the guests of Dr. W. R. Bell's family, having driven over from Bellefonte, stopping to take dinner amid the wild scenery of the Seven Mountains. Those of the party who had not visited Lewistown before were delighted with our picturesque surroundings, and expressed a positive intention of returning for a more protracted stay some time in the future.

—The sad news was received Monday morning stating that Captain K. R. Breeze, of the United States Navy, was lying at the point of death from the effects of an affection of the heart, at his residence in Newport R. I. Captain Breeze is a son-in-law of ex-Governor Curtin, and was visiting in Bellefonte for several months early in the summer. Governor Curtin and family left on mail west Monday afternoon for the bedside of the afflicted man to await results.

LATER.—Captain Breeze died yesterday morning at 1 o'clock.

—Mr. John Smith, a resident of Spring township while driving to town the other day, his team ran away, throwing him out and breaking one of his legs. Dr. Hoy was called, and he repaired the broken member.

OUR WATER SUPPLY.

A Few Interesting Facts and Figures Regarding It, Etc.

Our people should give praise to the Almighty for His gratefulness in supplying us with an abundance of the purest and freshest water. While most of our neighboring towns are suffering terribly from what might be called a water famine, the citizens of Bellefonte are living in blissful ignorance of any such state of affairs. Our magnificent spring has never been known to fail to meet all the demands made upon it in any kind of weather, and the unusual drought we are now experiencing has had no effect whatever on the volume of water emitted by it. Our citizens were somewhat startled by the announcement made in the Watchman yesterday morning stating that within the past few weeks the water in our faithful spring was failing. A reporter who visited the water works yesterday was informed by Superintendent Rine that the statement was erroneous, and that the amount of water emitted by the spring is as great as ever. The body of water in the basin is somewhat lower than usual, however, but this is accounted for by the fact that more water is pumped into the reservoir than ever before, and also that owing to Spring creek being so low the usual amount of back-water has almost entirely disappeared, thus allowing the water from the spring to escape more freely beneath the wheel.

Careful mathematical estimation reveals the fact that the spring emitts 15,000 gallons of water every minute. At this rate it will be seen that 900,000 gallons are emitted hourly, or the enormous amount of 21,600,000 gallons daily. According to a statement recently published by the NEWS, six hundred thousand gallons were daily consumed by our people, which, as will be seen, is only one thirty-sixth part of what is produced. But since that announcement, the Water Superintendent says, fully a hundred thousand gallons more are required to meet demands, making in all seven hundred thousand gallons required to keep Bellefonte in water for twenty four hours' time. This is about two hundred and thirty-three gallons to every man, woman and child in town, which may seem to be a wonderful amount, but when we realize that it is only a trifle less than one-thirtieth of what the spring produces, it is comparatively small. It will be seen by this that our spring would supply a city of one hundred thousand people, allowing each inhabitant thereof to use two hundred gallons daily which they would scarcely do for ordinary purposes.

How willingly would we share this precious blessing with our neighboring towns were it possible to do so. While they are driven almost to desperation because of a scarcity of water, our people have an abundance and to spare, and daily thousands and thousands of gallons are wasted on our streets. All night long delicate sprays are scattered over the lawn or garden, moistening the parched blade or wilted vegetable, and great streams escape from hydrants carelessly left open. Truly what a blessing, and how slow many of us are to appreciate it. It is an old but very true saying, "A thing is never missed until it's gone."

The Physicians.

The following physicians have registered with the Prothonitary in compliance with law since our last report:

Austin Thomas—Born in Waterville, Maine. Medical degrees, one—Medical School of Maine, June 1st, 1870. Place of residence and practice, Nittany Hall, Pa.

John F. Woods—Born in Spring Mills, Pa. Medical degrees, one—Jefferson Medical College, March 13, 1871. Place of residence and practice, Boalsburg.

Philip S. Fisher—Born in Boalsburg, Pa. Medical degrees, four—University of Penn'a., Orthopædic Surgery, Agnew's Shcool of Anatomy, Philadelphia Lying in Charity and Practice of Obstetrics, 1867 and '68. Place of residence and practice, Zion, Centre county, Pa.

J. R. Smith—Born in Lewistown, Pa. Attended University of Penn'a., and practiced since 1844. Place of residence and practice, Pine Grove Mills.

L. R. Hensel—Born in Treverton, Northumberland county, Pa. Attended full course of studies and passed examinations at Jefferson Medical College in 1866 and '67. Place of residence and practice, Howard, Centre county, Pa.

—The resolutions framed by the commitee of the Juniata Valley Printers' Association, just announced, return thanks to Superintendents Pugh, Gage, Pitcairn, Carter, Kirtland and Taylor, and also to the several hotels of Bedford for their kind treatment of members of the association while stopping with them. They also convey sympathy with President Garfield and family in there severe affliction, and also express the hope that the Almighty in His providence may preserve to a sorrowing nation the life which has become so precious.

The Y. M. C. A. Convention.

The Committee of arrangements of the Y. M. C. A., of this place, have issued an address to various organizations of the State regarding the district convention to be held in Bellefonte, beginning on the 22nd inst. and closing on the 24th. The address states the arrangement of trains being such that delegates coming over the Philadelphia and Erie and Northern Central railroads will not arrive until late in the day, the afternoon meeting will be held in the rooms of the association and will be of an informal character for the purpose of effecting an organization. The usual welcome services will be held in the M. E. church on Thursday evening the 22nd. On behalf of the association and citizens of the town they extend to the deligates and all christian workers who shall be with them on this occasion a cordial welcome, and the hospitality of our citizens will be giadly extended to all regularly accredited delegates and other attendants of the convention. For the convenience of those who may prefer to stop at hotels, the committee has procured the following reduced rates: Brockerhoff House and Bush House, $1.50 per day each, and Garman House $1.25 per day.

They insist that each delegate should bring with him credentials properly signed by the secretary of the association. In order to facilitate the labors of the committee of arrangements, all associations are earnestly requested to forward names of all delegates and representatives to J. W. Gephart, chairman of the committee, no later than Saturday, the 17. All delegates arriving on Thursday and Friday will be met at trains by members of the reception committee, who will wear blue ribbon badges, and delegates are requested to wear a small white ribbon on the lapel of their coats. Should any miss the committee, they are requested to call at once at the rooms of the association, in Humes' block on Allegheny street.

Excursion tickets may be procured by delegates over the Pennsylvania, Philadelphia and Erie, and Northern Central railroads, although orders for the same must be procured from the chairman of the committee of arrangements, Mr. Gephart. The circular states that as this is the first District State Convention, it is desirable that it shall be characterized by success in every particular, and insists that each association shall send a delegation of their best and most active workers, who will be present from the first to the last of the convention.

The committee of arrangements also reiterates the request of the State Committee, that the third Sabbath of September, the 18th, be observed as a day of prayer for God's blessing on their work, and asks the prayers of the associations throughout the district that the sessions of the convention may be abundantly blessed by the outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

The Vetern Club Reunion.

the reunion of the Veteran Club of Centre County, held at Spring Mills on Saturday last, is said to have been successful so far as attendance was concerned. Early in the day people began pouring into the place, and before the sun was three hours high the streets of the little village were litterly packed. Everybody in the valley was there, and this side of the mountain was fully represented. An excursion train from Lewisburg brought a great crowd, and the Logan Veteran Club, from Mifflin county, under command of Col. Taylor, was also present. An abundance of provision was furnished for all by private parties, and no body left the table with an appetite unsatisfied. An unusual number of drunken rowdies, as usual, were on hand, although no disturbances occurred during the day. General Beaver requested the hotel keeper to close his bar, and immediately the front door was locked, but a good wide opening left in the rear. Lemonade and peanut fakirs were unable to cope with the beer men, and they had hard work to find customers who wanted five glasses of cold, refreshing lemonade for three cents.

The meeting of the club in the afternoon was largely attended, and considerable interest manifested. Ex-Governor Curtin was the orator of the day, and addresses were also made by J. Merill Linn, of Lewisburg, Col. Taylor, of Mifflin county, General Beaver, D. S. Keller and a number of others, all of which are spoken of very highly. After finishing the regular order of business, the committee appointed for the purpose reported in favor of Snow Shoe as the place of the next meeting. People began leaving early in the afternoon, and by sundown the village was almost deserted.

—One of the handsome bay horses driven by Mr. William Thompson, of Lemont, died on Thursday night last from the effects of a severe stroke of colic.

A Growing Evil.

A young lady while coming down High street the other evening had a handsome and costly black dress ruined by some brutish scoundrel standing on the bridge near the Bush House squirting a great mouthful of tobacco juice on the trail. This is utterly unbearable, and we think the borough authorities should be held responsible for it. Nor is this an exceptional case, as almost daily we hear of just such actions. One cannot pass by that place of an evening without elbowing his way through the crowd, and it seems to be getting unsafe for a lady to make the effort after dark unless accompanied by a gentleman. This intolerable nuisance, or evil, should receive the immediate attention of the proper authorities, and the police authorized to break it up. This particular spot seems to be singled out by a gang of young men and half-grown boys, who make it their nightly rendezvous, and where their howlings and carousing are usually kept up till a very late hour. This condition of affairs is steadily growing worse, and the parties who indulge in it seem to bid defiance to the policemen when they interfere. The most stringent action should be taken to stem this dreadful tide, and preserve the little moral reputation that yet remains.

Cane Presentation.

The Centre county Bar Association the other day presented the venerable James McManus, Esq., with a handsome gold-headed cane, the occasion to his fifty-fifth anniversary as a member of the Centre county Bar. The staff is made of lignum-vite, handsomely finished and surmounted by a heavy golden knob, elegantly carved and bearing the inscription, "Hon. James McManus—from the Bellefonte Bar—1826, Aug. 23, 1881." At the time the presentation was to have been made Mr. McManus was confined to his bed by sickness, and Mr. Reeder, secretary of the association, delivered the cane on Tuesday with an official communication congratulating the venerable attorney upon attaining his 55th anniversary and hoping for his speedy recovery of health and strength. Mr. McManus made a written reply, but we were unable to get hold of the correspondence. It need scarcely be said that Mr. McManus feels very grateful for the kindness shown him.

Personal Mention.

Miss Laura Stockholm, of Baltimore, is the guest of Mrs. D. G. Bush.

Miss Mattie Larimer, of Baltimore, is visiting the family of Mr. P. G. Meek.

Miss Sallie Winegardner, of Williamsport, is visiting her friend, Miss Lizzie Hahn, at Milesburg.

Miss Edith, daughter of Mr. John P. Harris, has departed for Boston, Mass., where she will enter Wellsboro College.

Mr. George Montgomery, formerly employed at Montgomery's tayloring establishment, has left for Renovo, where he expects to establish himself.

Mr. T. J. Lee, a former Bellefonter, but who has been away from town for several years, returned Thrsday, and will again make this place his permanent home.

Joseph Bauland, of "Bee Hive" fame, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Jacob Newman, are visiting through the west, and will make Chicago their headquarters while absent.

The Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin: Rev. J. F. Delong, of Bellefonte, is in the city, examining different churches to get points for the new edifice now being erected by his congregation.

Mr. B. J. Schroyer was in town over Sunday visiting his parents and friends. Ben is still in the employ of the Adams Express Company as messenger between Altoona and Philadelphia.

The Rev. Mr. Pennypacker has lately had an addition to his family by the appearance of a bright young son, whose innocent squealings make things unusually lively about that reverend gentleman's habitation just now.

—The colporteurs of the Pennsylvania Bible Society, Messrs. McSherry and Wolff, have completed another month in their work of distribution. They visited 1131 families, of which number 87 were without a copy of the Bible. Some of the 87 families had a copy of the New Testament. Of this number of destitute families, 33 were supplied by sale and the rest by gift. About $40.00 worth of Testaments and cheaper Bibles were distributed as gifts among the destitute families and poorer children. The contributions were meagre, and will not pay for the books donated. The number of Testaments and Bibles donated was about 675. The proprietor of the Garman House has favored the Bible agents in their work by reduced livery and boarding rates.

A Cheeky Individual.

The cheekest man ever born was in attendance at the colored bush meeting last Sunday afternoon. He is a Hebrew, and hails from Philadelphia. When the minister had finished his discourse and called on several members of his flock to serve the subscription basket, the Philadelphia man lost no opportunity to display his quality of "brass," but jumps up and with his hat circulated among the people on the hillside, wearing an idiotic smile, trying to flirt with the girls, making himself generally obnoxious to all decent people present. He collected a few cents, and with his brazen impudence stalked up to the altar, elbowing his way through the crowd, where he emptied the money at the feet of the minister. He is evidently one of those Philadelphia bummers who visit the country with the notion that country people have little more intelligence than swine, but who generally have their ideas corrected before they travel far. After the evening service, it is said, he practiced the same piece of impudence. It is our opinion that the Rev. Mr. Palmer would have conferred a favor on the fellow himself had he severely rebuked him at the time, as it might possibly have saved him from making a terrible fool of himself sometime in the future. Country people would find themselves in a terrible condition in a short time if they should pattern after such individuals as this shameless Philadelphia bummer.

Among the Indians.

Mr. George H. Cook, formerly of this place but now in New Mexico prospecting for gold, writes as follows to a friend concerning the doings of the Apache Indians, the slayers of General Carr's troupes. George is right among the red skin, and from the general tone of his letter it will be seen that he does not enjoy the situation. It is dated White Oaks, New Mexico and read as follows:

The first mail for this place in thirteen days was received this morning. It brought your two letters bearing date of the 17th and 19th. As long as I remain in town or near about my scalp is safe from the knife of the "scarlet innocents." This is the new name for the fiendish Apache. The country they range in is generally west of the Rio Grande and into Arizona. The latest report of yesterday was that they had crossed the river and were heading for the White mountains. There is a large reservation in these mountains where they (the Government) have been keeping them before they took to the war trail, and they are likely coming back to run off the government cattle and horses. We are in no immediate danger here in the Jicarillas. Six hundred Navajoe Indians broke out of their reservation last week and are on the war path, burning and pillaging in the northern and western part of the Territory. The Government is now taking active measures for their suppression and probable removal to the Nation. It is hoped by every citizen that such may be the result. Unless immediate action is taken we may look for all the horrors of an Indian war to be carried on for another year.

The heavy freshets are damaging the railroads, and our opportunities for communication are very poor.

GEO. H. COOK.

—The Young Men's Christian Association, we believe, have completed all arrangements for the holding of the convention, which convenes in this place on Thursday of next week.

—A heavy hail storm passed over College township Sunday last, doing some little damage to standing corn.
